One Card in Ike's Deck

On the day the Russians announced official acceptance of the invitation to participate in the Big Four conference in Geneva in July,
Sen. Walter
George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was writing verbatim with the American farm surplus problem.

This problem is one which President Dwight D. Eisenhower almost certainly will have in his brief case when he goes to Geneva. Trade is one of the things he will have to propose.

Sen. George has made it very plain that if American protectionists, particularly those in the textile field, are to have their way, then we must be prepared not only to permit Japan to trade with Russia and Red China and the Communist satellite countries, but to assist her to do so.

Only the revival of Japan's traditional and historic trade with her Asian neighbors will enable her to continue as a nation. Without such trade she must, of necessity, continue to be occupied by American troops and largely subsidized by American aid. We already are in the ridiculous position of having assisted her to rebuild her textile industry, and then refusing to allow her to sell the output of her mills to us or to anyone else.

This is an untenable position.
It must somehow be resolved.

Big Four

The United States cannot take very much of a positive nature to Geneva. It cannot now agree to anything concerning Chiang Kai-shek and the islands of Mai-su and Quemoy. Secretary Dulles is quite right to await the outcome of the Big Four discussions before making any preliminary gestures toward a Chinese conference concerning these islands for Formosa.

We can go to Geneva to talk about trade. We could offer a relaxation of the embargo against trade with Russia and Red China. The European nations very much want us to do this. There exists a United Nations embargo on strategic materials. This could not be removed until the next meeting of the General Assembly, but under the agreement, nations might remove from the list everything except actual weapons and gastrochemicals.

At any rate, trade concessions are the only really positive negotiating cards we can play at Geneva.

Positive Approach

The second possible positive approach is one which the President will hardly dare to add to that of relaxing the trade embargo against the Communist countries. This has to do with admission of Red China to the United Nations. This country has a moral objection to such entry.
Had not Red China entered the United Nations, but having done so, it almost is impossible for this country to agree to admit her without major compromises on her part.

Some time ago the British suggested that Red China be admitted to the United Nations with the veto power now held by Nationalist China. This power was given Chiang Kai-shek when he held most of the mainland and was in fact head of the Chinese government. The British proposal is that the Chinese Nationalists remain in the United Nations as a Formosan government but without any veto power.

Thus, in effect, we would have two Chinas in the United Nations. The British almost certainly will propose this. The President's reaction will be interesting. It likely contains too much political dynamite for him to make any agreement.

As a matter of fact, the grave danger is that the United States, having no really positive position to take, will attempt to make of the Big Four meeting merely a discussion of issues and seek to avoid any agreements.

Child's Eyes Shut by 5-Story Fall, Blind Parents Pray for Her Sight

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP) — Measuring her responsibility, Rosemary Marrazzo was far older than her three years. But at heart, of course, she was just a very little girl.

Rosemary's parents are blind. She was their eyes. A familiar figure in the area of her housing project, she gravely led her father and mother on their frequent errands. Darkness was their world. Rosemary was their light.

That was her responsibility, a staggering burden as adults measure such things. But she bore it cheerfully with the gallant undismay of the very, very young.

But she was still a little girl. And little girls since time began have been inquisitive, experimenting creatures. Thus was Rosemary today when she climbed out of her crib to investigate the fifth floor window of her bedroom. Somehow, she tumbled out.

At St. John's Hospital tonight her condition was critical.

At her bedside, praying, were her mother, Victoria, 30, and her father, Frank, 35.

They prayed, of course, for the child whose eyes were their own. But they prayed harder for a tiny tot who lost her way.

Cut Arms, Adenauer Urges Ike, Bulganin

WASHINGTON, June 14—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Germany urged President Eisenhower and Premier Bulganin to "declare their determination to translate controlled disarmament into reality" when they meet at the Big Four Conference in Geneva next month.

He called limitation of armaments the "basic point" and "prerequisite" in the possible formation of a general European security system.

For such a system he proposed an expansion of the new Western European Union with its arrangements for control of armaments and mutual assistance. The WEU now consists of Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and the German Federal Republic.

Adenauer also said he probably would accept Russia's invitation to visit Moscow but that such a trip "must be thoroughly prepared" in advance.

Earlier in the day, after a White House conference, President Eisenhower and Chancellor Adenauer declared that "in their combined opinion the concept of neutrality is in no way applicable to Germany."

While it was agreed that one of the objectives of the Big Four conference would be to "pave the way for early German reunification," the President and the Chancellor asserted that "only in collective security arrangements can Germany assure its independence."

The joint statement, issued after a 20-minute White House conference, was advanced before the Soviet Union that any Soviet proposals to reunify Germany on the basis of neutralization would be rejected.

Representing statements on declared with the four professions meeting were the four professionals. The four professionals said they were

British Ask End To Gaza Fighting

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—Britain warned Egypt and Israel today the peace of the Middle East may be upset unless they stop their clashes along the Gaza strip border.

Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan summoned the ambassadors of the two countries and reminded them separately of Britain's concern over the recent gun battles near the border.

Menon, Ike Mull Ways Of Easing Asia Tension

WASHINGTON, June 14—V. K. Krishna Menon of India reported today to President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles on the prospects as he saw them for easing tensions between the United States and Communist China.

The Indian envoy, who recently visited Peking in his chosen role as a one-man committee of good offices, said that "faith, not hope" was what the situation needed.

Neither Menon nor the administration would discuss the substance of today's conversations. Menon repeated, however, what he had said in New Delhi a few weeks ago—that in releasing four of the 15 United States airmen it had imprisoned, Communist China "opened the door" to the possibility of freedom for the others.

In an 80-minute conversation this afternoon with the secretary of state in the presence of the Indian ambassador, G. L. Mehta, Menon said he had discussed "the situation in the area of Formosa."

Cloudy, Warmer Predicted Here

Partly cloudy skies and slightly warmer temperatures are forecast for Atlanta Wednesday and Thursday. There's a chance of light showers Wednesday afternoon.

The thermometer Wednesday is due to range from 62 to a day's high of 78. A range of 64-80 is expected Thursday. Extremes here Tuesday were 64-71.

Lockheed Lands Contract For $97 Million in C130s

A $97-million contract for the manufacture of additional C130 Hercules turbo-prop medium combat transports at the Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s Georgia division was announced Tuesday by the Air Force.

The third C130 contract awarded the Marietta plant since 1952, the new agreement is the first fixed price incentive type contract for the Georgia Division.

A Lockheed spokesman said it will extend production of the Hercules "into early 1967."

The new contract includes the manufacture of an undisked number of C130s, spare parts, ground-handling equipment, training aids and technical data books.

Under the fixed-price agreement, the announcement said, the Air Force will obtain full advantage of private enterprise-type operation, and will be able to eliminate and streamline some time-consuming auditing procedures.

$6,000 in Diamonds Stolen at Store Here

A tray of diamonds valued at $6,000 was stolen Tuesday from a downtown Atlanta jewelry store, police said.

Dets. I. M. Eason and H. W. Reed said the diamonds were taken from L. A. Morgan Jewelry Co., 89 Alabama St., SW, between 1:20 and 6 p.m.

The detectives are seeking a Negro girl for questioning in connection with the theft.

This morning Menon, again accompanied by Ambassador Mehta, spent 45 minutes in the White House outlining his impressions of how it might be possible to work out an accommodation between the United States and Communist China.

The only news that came out of this meeting was a statement by James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, to the effect that Menon "probably" would see Eisenhower and Dulles again "at

House Ups Income Tax, Kills Sales Boost; Senate Trims Insurance Levy

Rise Halved As Leaders Sense Loss

By ALBERT RILEY
About $15,000,000 worth of House bills raising taxes on cigarettes, beer, automobile tags and driver licenses had cleared the State Senate Finance Committee Tuesday and are now ready for floor debate and passage.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed—but trimmed in half—another administration bill raising the tax on insurance premiums. It now goes back to the House for agreement with the Senate amendment.

As passed by the House, that bill would have raised the tax from 2 per cent to 2½ per cent on out-of-state insurance companies and from ½ of 1 per cent to ¾ of 1 per cent on domestic firms. It would have produced an estimated $1,500,000 in new revenue.

AMENDED VERSION

The Senate amendment cut the increase by half to make the new rates 2¼ per cent on out-of-state companies and ¾ of 1 per cent on domestic companies. The amended bill would produce about $750,000 in new revenue.

Senate floor leader Howard Overby of Gainesville agreed to the amendment pushed by Sen. Howell Hollis of Columbus and Everett Millican of Atlanta when it appeared that the administration might otherwise lose the entire bill.

FIGHT ON SMOKE

Hollis and Millican joined Overby in beating down a motion by Sen. Arnold Parker of Milledgeville to table the bill indefinitely and thus helped pass the amended version, 38 to 10.

A stiff floor fight is expected when the cigarette tax bill is called up for debate either Wednesday or Thursday. As there was in the House, where that bill barely squeaked by, there is opposition in the Senate from law-

Sirens Here To Signal Mock Atom Raid Today

Air raid sirens will shriek in Atlanta and 55 other American cities Wednesday as a mock attack with "nuclear explosives" is signaled in a nationwide civil defense exercise.

The make-believe bombing, Operation Alert 1955, will enable civil defense officials here and over the country to test evacuation plans.

In the Atlanta Metropolitan area, about 5,000 government workers will be evacuated from 16 buildings.

Nearly 2,000 evacuees will be fed by this Emergency Welfare Service of Atlanta's civil defense organization in Chastain Memorial Park. They will comprise the largest evacuated group—employees in the Peachtree-Seventh Street Building.

By Washington, President Eisenhower will lead 15,000 key people in government in a hurried evacuation to secret hideouts.

The President will jump in a car and rush out of Washington as soon as the sirens start blaring. Secretary of Defense Wilson will get out by helicopter.

President Eisenhower, Cabinet members, military chiefs and the nucleus of essential people from 33 federal agencies will hold up in relocation sites from 30 to 300 miles from Washington.

The Federal Civil Defense Administration will decide which American cities will be hit by "bombs."

"We are expecting to be bombed in Atlanta," Elliott R. Jackson, Atlanta area civil defense director, said.

Whether or not Atlanta is hit by a pseudo "bomb," evacuation plans will be carried out, Jackson emphasized.

He said there will be a warning at 11:09 a.m. that "enemy planes" are approaching. Air raid sirens here will sound a five-minute steady blast. Jackson said 150 switch engines in Atlanta railroad yards also will blow when the warning is sounded.

Government employees here will be evacuated by private cars and other vehicles to be furnished by the transportation industry.

Atlanta's 13 "official evacuation routes" will be used, Jackson said.

Buying U.S. Crops

VIENNA, Austria, June 14 (AP)—Austria agreed today to buy $5,900,000 worth of corn, tobacco and cotton from the United States.

The corporation tax rate was set at 4 per cent instead of 4½ per cent. This amendment, sponsored by Rep. Frank Twitty of Mitchell, wasn't fought by the administration. The group postponed action when authors of the bill failed to appear.

The vote on the increased income tax was 115 to 73. The House spent three hours on this proposal. In sending this bill to the Senate, the House made changes which cut five million dollars from the original estimate of 18-million-dollar new revenue the bill was expected to produce.

$40-Million Total Seen For Session

By M. L. ST. JOHN
The House passed an income tax increase bill Tuesday and killed, in committee, a proposed extension of the sales tax.

This apparently cut the Griffin administration's requested $65,000,000 to $40,000,000.

It cleared the way for adjournment of the special session Friday, if there is no delay in the Senate.

UNANIMOUS OPPOSITION

noon. The group, packed with administration supporters, voted 29 to 0 to recommend that the bill "do not pass." A subcommittee also had unanimously opposed the bill.

The sales tax proposal, defeat of which was forecast from the start of the session, is scheduled to be placed on the House calendar Wednesday for the purpose of agreeing to the committee report. Even the most ardent administration leaders forecast overwhelming approval of the report.

Floor leader Denmark Groover earlier Tuesday had given up on the sales tax. In arguing for the income tax bill, he told the House "this is perhaps the last bill that will come before you to insure progress." The sales tax would have produced an estimated $20,500,000.

SOFT DRINK TAX OUT

A 2-cent-a-bottle soft drink tax—not an administration proposal—apparently died in committee Tuesday. The group postponed action when authors of the bill failed to appear.

The vote on the increased income tax was 115 to 73. The House spent three hours on this proposal. In sending this bill to the Senate, the House made changes which cut five million dollars from the original estimate of 18-million-dollar new revenue the bill was expected to produce.

DeKalb Jury Backs Welfare Lien Measure

The DeKalb County Grand Jury Tuesday urged the county's legislative delegation to support a bill to allow the state to file claims against the estates of old-age pensioners for the amount of state aid given them.

The jury sent letters to D. J. Hall's four members of the General Assembly asking their support of the "lien law" bill.

The bill, sponsored by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, was introduced by Sen. Everett Millican of Atlanta.

It passed the Senate Tuesday and now is in the House of Representatives.

Reid Cofer, jury foreman, said the jurors felt that such a law would cause relatives of pensioners who are property owners to support them, rather than jeopardize their property to a state lien.

The state now has about 21,000 pensioners who own property. It has been estimated the bill would save the state approximately a million dollars a year.

The jury voted unanimously to ask the county's legislators to support the bill, Cofer said.

Committee for 7.5 Pct. Raise

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—The House Civil Service Committee today recommended a flat 7½ per cent pay increase for a million federal Civil Service employees.

Efforts to extend the raise to 8 per cent, stymied in committee, were promised when the pay measure reaches the House floor.

The Senate already has approved a 10 per cent boost for the Civil Service workers. That body also had voted a 10 per cent raise for the half-million postal employees, but the figure was trimmed to an average of 8 per cent in a compromise with the House.

The Story of Davy Crockett 11-Year-Old Davy Didn't Want A School—but the Adults Did!

Davy grunted and opened one eye. "Quit shaking me," he said to Wilson. "I'm awake."

"You'd better get up, then," Wilson told him, starting for the ladder. "Folks from the settlement have started coming."

"What folks?" Davy asked, still half asleep. Then suddenly he remembered.

He sprang out of bed. Grabbing his trousers, he pulled them on hastily.

It was Fourth of July Independence Day! People from miles around were coming to celebrate with a frolic in the tavern yard. He slipped his arms into his brown linsey shirt and combed his hair with his fingers. In no time he was scrambling down the ladder.

It was a splendid day, with the sky as blue as Becky's shortgown. And the yard was already filling up with people.

They came in wagons, on horseback, and on foot. There were girls and boys of all ages. There were women carrying babies. And other women carrying big baskets filled with food.

There were men with rifles, who planned to take part in the shooting match later.

Before long, Jed Flint arrived with the drum he had carried in the Revolutionary War. Abe Tobin had his rifle. And a man named Blake brought a big American flag.

Davy ran to fetch an ax and chopped down a slim tree for a flagpole. Then he held the flag while Mr. Blake tied it to the pole rope. Davy had never seen a flag before, and he counted the stars curiously. There were fifteen.

"They're real pretty, ain't they?" Davy said.

Mr. Blake nodded. "There's a star for each state in the Union except Tennessee," he told the boy as he tightened a knot in the rope. "This flag was made before Tennessee became a state, two years ago." He took the flag from Davy. "Well, Jed, here she goes," he cried.

Jed Flint nodded his head and began to beat loudly on his drum. Abe Tobin played "Yankee Doo-

Senate Panel Ups AF Bid 700 Million

Red Air Threat Spurs Increase

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Spurred by reports of Soviet aviation advances, the Senate Appropriations Committee today voted to spend additional millions to assure America its Air Force is "the most powerful in the world."

Adding more than 700 million dollars to the House-approved Air Force budget, the Democratic controlled committee went on to approve a total of nearly 32 billions in new funds for the entire Defense Department.

While hiking the air appropriation, the committee turned back moves to block manpower reductions which the Eisenhower administration has ordered for the Army and Marine Corps.

REFLECTED COMPLAINTS

The boost in Air Force money reflected complaints from some Democrats that the administration has not been telling all it knows of a possible increase in Russian air power in relation to this country's air strength.

President Eisenhower and civilian chiefs in the Pentagon have declared the United States maintains supremacy, although the official view appears to acknowledge that the Soviet air threat is mounting.

Controversy followed Air Force release last month of an account of new and powerful aircraft exhibited over Moscow on May Day. Secretary of Air Talbott later requested extra funds to speed up production of heavy B52 jet bombers, capable of delivering A-bombs anywhere in the world.

Sen. Chavez (D-NM) said the Appropriations Committee allotted the Air Force 356 million dollars in new money over that voted by the House. He reported the committee also deleted House provisions to pull back 380 millions previously granted the Air Force.

HEADED BY CHEVEZ

Chavez headed a subcommittee that screened the defense spending bill, largest of all appropriations.

He spoke of making certain the U. S. Air Force is the world's most powerful. The added money, he said, would "put the Air Force at its most effective stage in history, permit the Air Force to do the job the American people expect of them, and do it well, and make our Air Force No. 1 in the world today."

Salk 'Safe' With Limits, Scheele Replies to Hill

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Sen. Hill (D-Ala) demanded a government statement today on the safety of the Salk polio vaccine and was told "it is a potent material as safe as we know how to make it."

He asked his question at a stormy session of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, which he heads. Republicans accused Democrats of trying to make political capital by criticizing the Eisenhower administration's handling of the vaccination program. Sen. Bender (R-Ohio) denounced "Democratic politicians all over this land" who, he said, have been criticizing the program "in a shabby way."

Other Republican members of the committee objected that Hill was going beyond the agreed purpose of the meeting, which was to consider two rival proposals to furnish free vaccine to children.

But the chairman insisted that Congress should not vote millions for a mass inoculation program without knowing how safe it is. He said he also wanted to find out whether it is "sound public policy" to continue with the program at this time.

Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele, chief of the U. S. Public Health Service, eventually provided the replies.

He told the committee it is erroneously assumed the vaccine is 100 per cent safe, but that under recently revised manufacturing and testing standards "it is a potent material as safe as we know how to make it." By potent, Scheele meant effective in preventing infantile paralysis.

He added that it is "sound from the Public Health Service viewpoint to achieve mass immunization even though there are things we still don't have the answers to."

Secretary of Welfare Hobby came to the meeting to oppose Hill's plan to have the federal government furnish vaccine free to all children up to the age of 19. She said it might lead to "so-

Union Asks Sure Wage As Nash Talks Start

DETROIT, June 14 (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers Union made it plain today it expects the industry's so-called "independent" companies to come up with a guaranteed wage plan just as Ford and General Motors did.

Union leaders served demands on American Motors Corp. as formal negotiations covering some 22,000 employees got under way. The company makes Nash and Hudson automobiles and home appliances at eight plants in Michigan, Wisconsin and California.

On economic matters, the demands were the same as those handed Ford and General Motors two months ago — guaranteed wage, pay increases, pension boosts, vacation and holiday improvements and additional health and insurance benefits.

There was little doubt, of course, the union would be happy to settle for the Ford-General Motors "pattern." Settlements reached with those two industry giants within the last nine days guaranteed workers 60 to 65 per cent of take-home pay, including state unemployment compensation, for up to 26 weeks.

Compromises were reached on the wage, pension and other matters as well as on the union's original demand for a full guaranteed annual wage.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW vice president and director of the union's American Motors Department said employees of the recently merged firm need a guaranteed wage "even more than the bigger firms, because of its ups and downs in employment."

Edward L. Cushman, American Motors' director of industrial relations, said when informal talks with the union were held two months ago that his company should not be forced to follow a pattern set by the industry's prosperous big three — GM, Ford and Chrysler Corp. He said then that any agreement should be tailored to a smaller company's problems.

cialized medicine by the back door."

Mrs. Hobby proposed instead that Congress appropriate 35 million dollars to make the vaccine available to all needy children. She estimated Hill's plan would cost 135 million.

The Hill bill, she went on, would "restrict federal aid to those areas or groups covered by community-wide free vaccination programs."

Peron Cuts Support From 2 Bishops, Accused of Starting Recent Disorders

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 14 (AP)—The government today decreed that two Roman Catholic bishops cannot further serve in their high positions in Argentina with government support. It accused them of promoting disorders.

The decree from President Juan D. Peron and his Cabinet in effect ended the bishops' authority under the government.

However, a high church source said Santiago Luis Cardinal Copello might continue them in their present positions although separated from official government titles.

The decree named the Rt. Rev. Manuel Tato, provisor vicar general, auxiliary bishop for Buenos Aires and canon of the Buenos Aires episcopate, and the Rt. Rev. Ramon Pablo Novoa, canon deacon.

The decree cited an old Spanish law, dating back to Argentine colonial times, as authorizing the government to discharge church authorities held to have violated their duties in some way. Argentina, like Spain, participates in the selection of Catholic bishops.

Under a long-standing agreement, the Argentine Senate selects three nominees for vacancies in bishops' positions. The president sends one of these names to the Vatican, which reserves the right of actual appointment.

Catholicism is the state religion in Argentina, but the Peron government is trying to end that status.

Both Msgr. Tato and Msgr. Novoa were charged in the 1,800-word decree with instigating Catholic observances May 6 and June 11 that the government had banned. These observances ended in street fights between Catholics and federal police and in counter-demonstrations by supporters of Peron in the seven-month-old state-church dispute.

Bishop Tato, 48, a native of Buenos Aires, has been in effect acting head of the Catholic Church in this country recently because of Cardinal Copello's illness.

British Rail Strike Ends

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—Britain's old walkout just when it was beginning to bite deeply into Britain's industry. The walkout cost the railways an estimated $2,800,000 a day.

Prime Minister Eden's newly-elected Conservative government thus weathered its first serious domestic crisis.

Telegraphed orders flashed at once to railway centers to get traffic moving. Some of the 67,000 strikers were expected to climb into their engine cabs by midnight, with the prospect of near normal service by tomorrow evening. The men called off their 17-day-

House Committee Acts With Courage

The House Ways and Means Committee late yesterday apparently all but killed the administration's proposal to extend the sales tax to services. The vote, 29-0, seems an indication that the measure is dead, awaiting only the final House vote.

There will be few mourners at the grave of this bill—one of the most unpopular tax proposals in many a day. Impractical and impossible to enforce, its effectiveness and fairness as a revenue measure could not be established. The Ways and Means Committee has acted wisely and with courage.

It appears now that the Assembly will pass revenue measures that will bring in $40,000,000. The sales tax proposal would have produced about $20,000,000 and other scale downs will lower the figure approximately $5,000,000 more from the $65,000,000 originally sought.

As State Auditor Thrasher has said, the original figure that included higher teacher raises than will be necessary to finance under the Minimum Foundation Program permitted a certain cutback from the original target. Approximately $11,000,000 of the $40,000,000 total will automatically be earmarked for roads, leaving about $29,000,000 additional to be pro-rated among education, welfare and health services.

Certainly the Assembly should recommend allocation of the new revenues and not leave it to the whim and discretion of one man.

It is probable that the new revenue measures that are assured of passage will produce more money than estimated. This will depend somewhat on the state's general economic condition and the fact that the estimates were deliberately conservative.

Improved tax collections, plus the new revenue, should alleviate the financial crisis in state government. Meanwhile, the search should go on for the real economies that are possible such as the lien law in administration of public welfare that was approved by the Senate yesterday.

Certainly the governor and the Legislature must realize from the tremendous opposition which has been expressed to their program that the people of Georgia are ready to call a halt to the ever-growing burden of taxes.

Ike, Adenauer Reject Neutral Germany Idea

President Eisenhower and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer yesterday made their move in the diplomatic chess game going on with the Russians. They issued a joint agreement saying, "The concept of neutrality cannot be applied to West Germany."

This was a move to checkmate a Kremlin offer of unification of West and East Germany with "neutrality" as the price. That is to say, Germany would sign a treaty forcing all foreign troops off her soil while pledging herself to the status of a nonbelligerent in the event of war.

This is a forthright move and a necessary one.

There is great opposition in Germany to rearmament as it is. The chancellor, always courageous and bold, will need all his strength to bring off a victory if the Russians do, indeed, make their offer of unification and withdrawal.

For the West, at least, and for Germany, too, the concept of "neutrality" cannot now be safely accepted.

A ray of hope is offered in the belief held by many world diplomats that the Soviet Union sees no value in East Germany as a satellite and would be willing to free it in return for reasonable guarantees.

Everybody's Booming Except the Farmers

Sen. Walter George quite properly attacked Secretary of Agriculture Benson's farm policies in his address here Monday. He showed clearly that the continued decline in farm income is resulting in an unbalanced economy that could result in permanent agricultural depression.

While the national income has continued to rise, farm income has declined 17 per cent since 1950, the senator pointed out. The farmer's share of the food dollar has declined from 52 cents in 1946 to 42 cents today.

Even though mechanization, larger farm units and improved methods have increased efficiency, the purchasing power of the farm population has decreased while that of other groups in the economy have continued to rise.

The House of Representatives has just approved a minimum wage of $1 an hour to labor and United Automobile Workers have gained the framework of a guaranteed annual wage. Highly organized pressure groups have gained increasing protection for themselves and industry has a certain guaranteed security with the tariff laws.

In other words, except for the farmer the trend is toward more and more protection and guarantees from government. Lacking equal guarantees, the farmer is being caught in the price-cost squeeze that actually presents a danger to the nation's future food supplies and industrial raw materials.

Meanwhile, the nation seems headed toward an economic boom in most fields with more inflation and higher prices. Faced with these economic facts, the farmer seems destined to slide even further down the scale. If, as Sen. Russell says, he is stabilized "at the bottom of the barrel," we will have gone full circle in our search for a farm program.

To Lock Barn Doors Is A Sound, Safe System

Sen. Everett Millican has moved to see that the highway department gets its full share of state funds.

The senator has introduced a resolution directing the governor to appropriate for roads each year a sum of money at least equal to the gasoline and auto tag tax collections of the preceding fiscal year.

The Millican resolution now before the Senate is a forceful reminder that Georgians approved a constitutional amendment in 1952 to the same purpose. The amendment provided that an amount equal to gasoline and auto tag collections be granted each year to the highway department for maintenance and new construction.

The last appropriation bill passed by the General Assembly, however, was in 1951. It is operative today, less a 6 per cent economy slash. The result is that the highway department, like other branches of the state government, receive now what they received then, plus whatever the governor in his wisdom and power sees fit to grant.

Pressure and the needs of other agencies have resulted in the diversion of gas and auto tag tax funds to purposes other than those specified by the Constitution.

If these tactics of diversion are allowed to continue, it could cost the state dearly in the next few years. Georgia needs good roads, and to get them, Georgia needs state funds to match federal funds.

Georgia also needs a new appropriation bill. Times have changed since 1951, and the state's income and the demands of state agencies have changed radically, too.

Equalization Should Be A Two-Way Proposition

School superintendents in the metropolitan Atlanta area have issued a statement pointing out that no state school funds were received this year for 10,000 children in the area because the Minimum Foundation Program for Education is not being financed in full on a "current basis."

The educators further point out that while the state is now paying about 72 per cent of the total school bill, contributions to Atlanta's city system are only about 30 per cent. Marietta and Decatur receive about 45 per cent while Fulton County gets only 50 per cent and DeKalb 60 per cent of its funds from the state.

School funds are now allocated on a per-teacher basis, figured on average daily attendance of the previous school year. Rapidly growing systems, such as those in the Atlanta area, are thus penalized. DeKalb, for instance, has more than 3,000 more students in school this year than last—students for which no state funds are provided.

It is only fair to point out to these educators, some of whom helped the GEI in the drive to kill the measure, that the so-called "Thrasher Plan" was designed to correct both situations in time.

This plan would have changed funds allocation from a per-teacher to a per-pupil basis and would have forced lagging local communities to accept a more equitable share of the cost of schools. It would have tended to promote more efficient operations and consolidations and would have speeded tax equalization throughout the state.

While it may have had some faults, defeat of the plan encourages a continuation of the situation as it now exists. The state will continue to pay the cost of uneconomical operations and of equalizing school funds in communities that refuse to pay their share of the load—even though some of them are fully as capable as DeKalb and Cobb.

Meanwhile, these citizens of the Atlanta area will have to dig further into their pockets for more local funds if their needs are to be met.

Equalization should not be a one-way street but it will be as long as educators team up to defeat measures that could make it reciprocal. Rigid determination to preserve the status-quo could hold back real educational progress.

State Should Be Run as a Private Business With Small Margin of Profit, Georgian Says

Bluffton—The Legislature has gathered together for the solemn purpose of separating the taxpayers of Georgia from some 65 million dollars each and every year from now on. That ain't hay. It is hard-earned money and part of our very lives.

Remember that we the people elected them to look after OUR interests in state government. All we ask is that in spending OUR money, they use the same rule they would if the thing was their private business, and the margin of profit was small.

When taxes take too large a bite out of our earnings, the incentive to earn is lessened. Remember, it is possible to "kill the goose that laid the golden egg."

Georgian Criticizes Griffin's Campaign

Atlanta—Last summer Marvin Griffin promised the people of Georgia that if they would vote him in as governor there would be no increase in taxes during his administration, that he was familiar with the financial condition of the state and that no additional taxes were needed.

Based on that promise, I and thousands of others voted for him and elected him, and then what does he do? He hardly takes his seat in the governor's office before he calls an extra session of the Legislature and gives them instructions to vote him 65 million dollars in additional taxes. He says frankly he doesn't care what he told the people last summer. In other words he admits getting himself elected governor by fraud and lying.

It is strange that the Legislature is apparently preparing to increase taxes simply because a dishonest governor asks them to do so.

GEORGIAN FOR 50 YEARS.

Atlantan Suggests Economy Program

Atlanta—Gov. Marvin Griffin was our lieutenant governor for four years. He had every opportunity to know the operation of our state. Yet his campaign pledge was no increase in taxes. Let's help him keep that promise.

Gov. Griffin should surround himself with six or more of the state's outstanding businessmen and let them investigate every department of the state with a purpose of a 100 per cent rigid economy program. After they complete the investigation, get the department heads over the state together and tell them what they have got to do and give them just 90 days to do it. If they haven't done it, do it for them.

Governor Accused Of Being Insincere

LaGrange—Any man who would brazenly declare after less than six months in office that "I don't care what I said last summer," is certainly open to the charge of insincerity to say the very least. It is to be hoped that when his mentor and advisor, former Governor Talmadge runs for the Senate next year, that the people will remember who foisted this incred-

Don't Let Schoolteachers Be 'Tax Boost' Scapegoats

There is no excuse whatever for putting the squeeze on Georgia schoolteachers in order to obtain pressure for Gov. Marvin Griffin's full 65 million dollar tax increase.

But that, apparently, is what the governor has in mind doing. He told newsmen in a press conference last week that under the proposed program "the only thing that can be cut is the teachers' recommended salary raise."

Truth of the matter is the salary raise for teachers accounts for only a very small part of the total 65 million dollars the governor is asking.

Out of the proposed allocation of new funds an approximate increase of $26,529,000 will go for operations of grade and high schools. But by no means will all of this go to increase teachers' salaries, because included in this amount will be supervisors, visiting teachers, librarians, principals and other local administrative costs.

So, Gov. Griffin's threat to eliminate the teachers' salary raise does not make sense unless he is attempting to disguise the demand for more taxes as principally an educational measure.

What about the other $38,500,000 of the proposed increase? Cannot some reductions be made there before knifing the school teachers' pay check?

Indications are there can be. For example, $20,500,000 of the proposed increase would be designated for highways.

But revenues already being received from motor fuels taxes and vehicle licenses will amount to nearly 71 million dollars this fiscal year. This amount (less an estimated allowance of $2,500,000 for refunds) added to the available ible choice for governor upon them in 1954 and will act accordingly.

One can only hope that the State of Georgia may survive three more years of this crushing burden of taxation and extravagance, and that by 1958 the people will have learned enough to elect a fine, decent man, a man such as Charlie Gowen, our next governor.

How to Get Him Out of a Hammock

Lady lives down the street from me has found a new use for a water pistol that I had not thought of. Every afternoon, after a hard day chaffering chillun, running to market, bossing the maid, and thawing out something from the freezer to cook for supper, she sits down on the terrace in her back yard to take her ease.

By her side, on a low table, she lays a little water pistol. It is loaded with water and household ammonia, in a weak solution of about two parts water to one part ammonia. And every time her neighbor's dogs come snuffling around, to visit with her dog, or maybe just to mooch a bite to eat, she takes up the little pistol and pops him right on the end of the nose with a squirt of ammonia water. It does not do him any great harm, but he thinks it does, for when the ammonia hits him on the nose and he takes a deep breath it chokes him and he lets out a yipe that can be heard a quarter of a mile, beats himself on the nose with his forepaws, and takes off for home.

She has got so handy with a water pistol she does not even have to aim it. She just shoots from the hip, without even interrupting the flow of conversation. In fact, she has not missed but once, as I recall. That was some weeks ago, when she had not done much practicing, and she actually didn't miss that time. She just scattered her fire too much.

She was reading a book at the time and her husband, who is a heavy-set, slow moving man, was asleep in the hammock, and this big shaggy dog from down the street came along very quietly and was standing there looking down upon her snoozing husband when she looked up and saw him. So she grabbed the pistol and fired, without drawing too good a bead, and since the dog's nose was only about a foot away from her husband's nose, she gave them both a good dose of ammonia water.

Things were a little confused there for a moment, she recalls. In fact it was the first time in her life, she says, that she ever saw a fat man leap entirely out of a hammock without putting his feet on the ground. He took off down the driveway in his sock feet, making better speed, for the first 50 yards or so, than the dog was making, and howling louder, being under the impression that his sinuses had exploded.

He came back all right, a little red-eyed and mad, but she hasn't seen hair nor hide of the dog since. And now she looks on the water pistol with new respect. It's the finest device ever invented, she says, for getting a husband out of a hammock.

Expect Some Pains Throughout All Life

I will never forget what the coach said to us the first day I went out for football practice. He told us that football is a rough game and if we expected to play it, we must also expect to sometimes get hurt.

So with life. If you expect to live it, you must also expect some bruises and hurts. That is just the way it is. And David, thinking of that fact, said in the 23rd Psalm, "Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over."

As the sheep grazed, sometimes its head would be cut by the sharp edge of a stone buried in the grass. There were briars to scratch and thorns to stick.

Then, some days the sheep had to walk steep paths under a hot merciless sun. At the end of the day it would be tired and spent.

So the shepherd would stand at the door of the fold and examine the sheep as each one came in. If there were hurt places, the shepherd had soothing and healing oil which he gently applied. Instead of becoming infected, the hurt would soon heal.

Also, the shepherd had a large earthen jug of water. The kind of a jar which kept the water refreshingly cool through evaporation. As the sheep came in, the shepherd would dip down into the water with his big cup and bring it out brimful. The tired sheep drank deeply of the life quickening draught.

Remember how as little children we would bruise a finger or stump a toe. We would come running to our mama and she would kiss the hurt away. There was mystic healing in her loving concern.

As older children we still get hurt. A heart can be broken, a conscience can ache like an infected tooth, feelings can be hurt, the world can deal cruelly and harshly. One can become discouraged and tired. The burden of life can sometimes be unbearable.

But also there is the tender Shepherd who understands the hurt of His children and is ever ready and able to minister to that hurt. Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian, was grief stricken at the loss of his son. But he found The Shepherd.

Later he was giving a concert in Chicago before an overflow crowd. He responded to repeated encores and finally he quieted the audience and said very quietly, "Don't thank me. Thank the good God who put the songs in my heart."

Notice David said, Thou anoint MY head with oil, MY cup. . . . He doesn't say "our" heads. It is the singular, personal pronoun.

The Psalmist said, "He healeth the broken in heart. . . . He telleth the number of stars." (Psalm 147:3-4) The power of the universe is a power at MY disposal.

Truman Will Carry Fight to Republicans

WASHINGTON—Harry Truman seems likely to occupy a unique role in our politics as an "ex." He is, as we know, the only ex-President in this century who has been active politically after he left the White House. There have been only two other Democratic presidents since 1900. Woodrow Wilson was an invalid during the three years he lived after his retirement. Franklin D. Roosevelt died in office.

When you cast back into fairly recent history, there are two men who stand out as dynamic figures in politics in their "ex" periods. One was a Republican, Theodore Roosevelt, who made a futile comeback try as head of a third party in 1912 after being President from 1901 to 1909. The other was a Democrat, William Jennings Bryan, who was never president, of course, but tried so often—being thrice the candidate—that he was just as well known as any president of his time.

Unlike those two, Harry Truman is not seeking anything else from his party. He is, rather, the champion and spokesman of the party rank and file, and more so than either Theodore Roosevelt or William Jennings Bryan in their "ex" periods, though each of those had sizeable and devoted followings until their deaths.

Harry Truman evokes a closer personal interest among the rank and file of his party than the other "ex" of today—Herbert Hoover. Mr. Hoover never excited the same warmth among the party rank and file before or after he left the White House. Instead he was elevated to the more aloof and dignified role of elder statesman, and never mixed much in the practical politics of his party, nor did he get down to the earthy, sort of campaigning for which Harry Truman has become famous. Nobody ever shouted "Herb" or "Herby" at him, as they call out "Harry" to the Democratic ex-President.

We may expect to see Harry Truman in his familiar campaign role in the coming months. From his speech in Portland, Ore., last Saturday night, we may expect him to carry the fight against President Eisenhower, at least until most other party leaders abandon their present hands-off attitude toward the Republican President.

The appearance in the Pacific Northwest gave the former President an opportunity to strike a blow for something very close to his heart—the public power program which has been so great a boon to the Northwest—and to warn how it is threatened with destruction by powerful utility interests which, he charged, are "using" President Eisenhower.

In this field, as in others, the former president is clearly the most effective spokesman in the Democratic Party. He knows what he is talking about. He uses the simple language—if on the strong side—which the people understand. He holds a president should be the champion of all the people against all that—and he said that President Eisenhower is not fulfilling that responsibility.

New Slaying Trial Asked For Mother

Georgia's Supreme Court had under consideration Tuesday a plea for a new trial for Mrs. Elsie Mae Lathan, 39, mother of 10 children, who is under life sentence for murder in the shooting of her husband.

Herbert Kimzey, Clarksville attorney, in oral arguments before the court asked that the Habersham County woman be given a new trial on the ground that Judge John E. Frankum of the Mountain Circuit erred in charging the jury in her trial in Clarksville last November.

Kimzey contended that the court's charge on the question of reasonable doubt was "confusing to the jury" and that the judge should have charged that parents and children "may mutually protect each other." He also argued that Judge Frankum charged the jury on conspiracy and Mrs. Lathan's co-conspirators, who were her alleged co-conspirators, were subsequently acquitted.

Mrs. Lathan was convicted of shooting her husband, Clyde, following an argument in their home the night of last Aug. 30. Her 18-year-old daughter, Willene, and 13-year-old son, Roy, were indicted with her but acquitted in a trial following hers.

The mother has remained in jail since her conviction, and six of her children have been placed in a foster home under the supervision of the county welfare department.

Campbell Sees Consolidation As Answer for Small Farms

Agriculture Commissioner Phil Campbell told a meeting of the Southeastern Peanut Assn. at the Biltmore Hotel Tuesday that America's farmers "will be able to feed 400 to 500 million on our present acreage."

Campbell, while discussing expected population increase and its probable effects on agriculture, expressed complete confidence in the ability of the farmer to meet future needs. He praised the work of federal and state experiment stations and advances in farm machinery.

"We haven't nearly gotten out of our present acreage all that we can," he added.

"Over Georgia and the Southeast, I look for small farmers to intensify their operations or get out and let big farms take over," Campbell said when discussing die" on his life. The crowd became quiet. And up went the red, white and blue.

Then all the men with rifles fired them off with a great bang. Someone shouted, "Three cheers for the United States of America!" "Hurray!" yelled the people.

"The good free United States!" another man shouted. "Let's hope she always stays free."

A little wind caught the flag and blew it out against the sky. Davy's heart fluttered.

He didn't know much about his country. He didn't know how big it was or what lay beyond it. But something about that flag made him feel good all over. "Hurray!" he shouted all by himself.

Once more the men shot off their rifles. As the smoke cleared away, the people began to talk again. Then it was time for the games.

The wrestling matches came first and lasted a long time. Next came the foot races, one for the men and one for the boys.

Davy ran like a deer in the boys' race and won it with no trouble at all. But in the knife-throwing contest, he threw his knife too far.

It was noon when this contest was over, and everyone was ready for dinner. So the women sat down on logs or tree stumps, and opened their baskets of food, and gathered their children around them. The men gave everybody juicy hunks of warm venison and hear meat which they had roasted over hot coals in a pit.

Davy ate and ate and ate. Finally he wiped his mouth on the back of his hand.

"I'm full," he announced happily. "When does the shooting match start, Ma?"

"I don't know," his mother replied, rubbing some bear grease from Sally's chin. "That Mr. Blake, who's just settled here, has asked your pa if he can't have a meeting first. He aims to start a school for the settlement."

Davy looked alarmed. "I don't want one," he declared hastily. "Me neither," Wilson added. "I won't go."

"You will if your pa tells you to," his mother said firmly. "Land sakes! Here you are, 13 years old. Davy's near 12. Joey's 10. And not one of you can write your name."

"But, Ma," Davy broke in, "I don't—"

"Hush!" his mother commanded. "Here's your pa now to tell about the meeting."

BOYS HAD A SWIM

And there was Pa Crockett, standing on the tavern steps and banging on a pan to make folks listen to him. He told them all that the meeting was just for grownups. So the girls went off to the wood lot for a game of Blind Man's Buff. The boys started for the Holston River.

They had such good fun swimming that they almost forgot about the shooting match. At the sound of the first shot, they started splashing out of the water. In a few minutes they were dressed and racing for the tavern.

The men had been shooting at a board which was nailed to a big oak tree. Now they were trying to hit a horn button in the center of the board.

One after another they tried it. Some came close, but none succeeded. Then lanky Tim Taylor raised his rifle. He was the best hunter for miles around.

"Zing!" went Tim's bullet, straight to the mark. The button disappeared as it broke into tiny pieces. The crowd cheered. Davy looked up at Tim admiringly.

JUST GRIN AT COONS

"I bet you could hit a mosquito right between the eyes if you wanted to," Davy said. "I aim to shoot as good as you do some day."

Tim Taylor laughed. "You don't need to, young 'un," he said. "All you have to do is to grin at a coon and he falls right down out of a tree! At least that's what John Dunn told me."

Davy's face turned red. But he beamed happily when Tim handed him his rifle.

"She's loaded, son," said Tim, eyeing the boy with a kindly smile. "Want to try one shot?"

Davy was speechless. His eyes shone as he carefully took the rifle. It was longer and heavier than Pa's. But it balanced nicely.

"She's got a good, strong kick," said Tim. "Brace yourself. That's right."

"Whillikens! Davy's going to shoot Tim Taylor's rifle!" shouted Wilson. Several men turned to watch and Joey came running up.

NO BULL-EYES, YET

Bang! Wilson ran toward the board. "Davy hit it!" shouted Wilson. "He hit it on the side."

"And I was aiming right at the for it next month. And, come frost, you'll be there, too. You see if you won't."

But when Mr. Blake opened his school that fall, Davy Crockett was many miles away.

Tomorrow: Davy leaves home.

Senate Cuts Insurance Tax in Half

Loss of Entire Bill Is Feared

makers from the south Georgia tobacco country.

The Senate finance committee turned a deaf ear, however, to pleas Tuesday from Sen. Dorsey Matthews of Moultrie and H. L. Wingate, head of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, to have "mercy" on the south Georgia leaf growers.

Sen. J. L. Wetherington, who gets his mail at Jasper, Fla., cast the only vote in the committee against the bill that would raise an estimated $5,000,000 by boosting the cigarette tax from 3 cents to 5 cents a package.

CHANGE REJECTED

The committee rejected an amendment by Chairman H. R. Garrett of Quitman to trim the tax increase and fix the rate at four cents for both regular and king-sized cigarettes. That, in effect, would have raised the tax on regular-size cigarettes by only one cent a pack and kept king-sized smokes at the present four-cent rate.

Garrett is expected to offer his amendment from the floor, however.

As the committee also turned a deaf ear to pleas from the beer industry not to double the levy from two cents to four cents a can, it refused to adopt an amendment proposed by Sen. Hollis to raise the beer tax by only one-half cent.

The Hollis amendment, which likely will be offered from the floor, would drastically reduce the $3,000,000 revenue measure.

FEES ON LOANS

In a busy afternoon, the committee also voted out a bill to impose a 3 per cent tax on all fees charged by small loan companies over protests from industry spokesmen and Industrial Loans Commissioner Zack Cravey, who urged that the bill be amended. It would raise an estimated $500,000.

Finally, the committee also approved a $6,000,000 bill to virtually double automobile license tag fees. There was no opposition to this bill and it was even strengthened by a committee amendment.

Sen. Millican got the panel to adopt an amendment which would raise from 50 cents to $1 the license tag fee charged to local governments for city-owned and county-owned vehicles.

DRIVER'S LICENSE

Already approved by the committee Monday and ready for floor action is a bill to impose a $1 fee for a driver's license, with veterans exempted and the fee for drivers' wives and children set at 50 cents.

Also ready for Senate floor action Wednesday is a resolution by Sen. Millican directing the governor to allocate to roads and highways in the next fiscal year all gasoline and tag tax revenue.

In Tuesday's committee hearings, H. L. Wingate told the senators the proposed cigarette tax increase will reduce sales and indirectly hurt south Georgia tobacco growers already faced with acreage reductions.

PLEADS FOR "MERCY"

Federal and state taxes already amount to $1.83 on a pound of tobacco for which farmers get only 52 cents on a national average, he said. Smokers in Georgia already pay $34,600,000 a year in U.S. and state cigarette taxes, he added.

Pleading "for a little mercy" for the farmers, Wingate was joined by Sen. Matthews who said he was "begging on bended knee" for the bill to be killed. Matthews said south Georgia tobacco growers should not be taxed unfairly any more than north Georgia poultry producers.

A similar appeal against the beer tax increase was made by Bill Truby, representing the U.S. Brewers Foundation. The increase, Truby said, would make Georgia's beer tax the highest in America. It would throw Georgia beer prices completely out of line with bordering states, he added.

"DIMINISHING RETURNS"

Truby said that in addition to the state tax, local taxes on beer already are high and produce revenue for counties and municipalities that might be hurt by the state tax rise. He was joined by Sen. Hollis, who said beer taxes "have reached the point of diminishing returns already."

Ernest Stewart of Thomasville and others opposed the small loans tax, declaring it would amount to a 3 per cent gross income tax on that industry. Cravey advocated amending the bill to make the tax apply only to the interest charges. The small loan law, he argued is just activated and the bill would cause added confusion and encourage "hip pocket" lenders.

Rural Roads Authority To Let First Jobs Aug. 5 in $100 Million Program

The Rural Roads Authority plans to let the first contracts in its $100 million program Aug. 5.

Engineers told the authority Tuesday they expect to be ready for that date. They said final right-of-way settlements should be completed by July 13.

No general list of projects was released.

The authority took bids from five Atlanta firms for services as fiscal agent in promoting and arranging the sale of bonds. Members said they anticipate a 10 million dollar issue for the first contract letting.

Chairman Dixon Oxford said the name of the fiscal agent selected from the bids will be announced in two weeks.

Vice Chairman Walter Williams of Gray, asked for traffic counts on two roads in Baldwin County to determine whether they should be paved. State engineers were requested to check traffic on the roads.

Large Delegation To See Griffin on Taxes

A large delegation is expected to attend a public hearing on taxes before Gov. Griffin at noon Thursday, L. A. Welch, Sylvan Hills grocer and leader in the movement, said Tuesday night.

Welch, a resident of the Sylvan Hills section 23 years, said the plan is gaining momentum and that civic clubs in East Point, College Park and Decatur and in DeKalb and Cobb counties promised to join Fulton County civic clubs in the march on the state capitol.

Welch, a member of the Fourth Ward Civic Club, organizers of the movement, said he had received "100 per cent cooperation" from all civic leaders thus far contacted.

However, Mrs. Frank Slife of 869 Dill Ave., SW, president of the Fourth Ward Civic Club, said,

"So far I have not heard anything from the governor if he will see us at the hearing."

Welch said the group would

IN WHITFIELD, BOXES OF WARRANTS STACK UP
Clerk Fred Cooper Shows Accumulation From Recent Court

Peace Warrants Vex Many Georgia Officers

By JIMMY WALKER

DALTON, June 14—Georgia law officers are perplexed over a peace problem.

Many believe that "peace warrants" provoke more than they prevent.

A peace warrant can be issued by a Georgia justice of the peace against anyone accused of threatening harm to another person or property.

The legal thinking is, that under a bond set by the JP, the havoc will be avoided.

"For all the good they do, the warrants might as well be abolished," believes Irwin Mitchell, solicitor general of the Cherokee Judicial Circuit.

The threat of paying off a peace warrant bond is hardly a deterrent to anyone bent on prying someone else apart, he said. But most of the warrants are issued needlessly, Mitchell said, over a family spat. More often than not, the wife who swore out the paper is down at the jail next morning eager to have the whole thing forgotten.

"PLAIN NUISANCE"
But in the meantime, the sheriff or a deputy has spent an hour or two tracking down the party to serve the warrant, Mitchell said, "when he could be patrolling or chasing lawbreakers."

Summed up Whitfield County

Sheriff H. P. McArthur, "They're just a plain nuisance."

Financial problems involved in serving peace warrants was a topic of discussion at the last meeting of the Georgia Sheriff's Assn. Reason is, the sheriff's office is usually on the losing end.

Until disposition of a warrant is final, the officer cannot collect a fee for his time and work. Since most warrants die a quiet death, the fee is not forthcoming.

UP TO JUDGE
According to the Georgia Code, a peace warrant is in effect only until the next term of Superior Court. It is then left up to the judge to extend the warrant and if he doesn't, it becomes void.

"Testimony is supposed to be recorded at the justice hearing for presentation to the judge in Superior Court," said Winston Owen, solicitor general of the Mountain Judicial Circuit. "I've never known it to be done."

Some Georgia JPs are known to issue peace warrants at a prolific rate; others only as a last resort. In Toccoa, Judge G. K. Lotheridge said, "I've been a justice of the peace here 22 years, and I've never known a peace warrant to be extended in Superior Court."

Seldom will he issue one because he thinks "most of them are caused by contrariness and family rows."

In Hall County, however, a recent grand jury took note of the warrant situation and called on justices of the peace there to "investigate carefully" before granting a warrant.

Engineer Corps To Be Honored In 181st Year

The Army's Corp of Engineers will be honored on their 180th anniversary Thursday by the Upper Chattahoochee Development Assn.

At 4 p.m. the members of the association and guests will tour the Buford dam project. A dinner honoring the corps will be held at 6 p.m.

Mayor Hartsfield will head a group of city officials who will attend.

GUESTS OF GEN. HOLBROOK

4 East Point City Officials Planning To Tour Ft. Lee

By BOB WILLIMON

Four East Point city officials will be among some 50 Atlanta area residents making a tour of Ft. Lee, Va., June 22-23.

The four are Mayor A. A. Roberts, Councilman Craig Pinyan, City Clerk Walter P. Kidd and Police Chief W. H. Tyler.

Maj. Gen. Frank Holbrook, former commander of the Atlanta General Depot and now commander of the Ft. Lee Quartermaster Training Command, invited the local group on the tour as a public relations gesture.

The tour party is slated to witness an "air drop" at nearby Camp Pickett on June 23. After this event, Mayor Roberts and Kidd will fly to New York to sign some $1,800,000 in revenue certificates, which will be issued to cover costs of expanding the city's water system.

Barbecue for School

Some 3,000 persons are expected to attend a barbecue to raise funds for a new "Little Red Schoolhouse" for handicapped children.

The barbecue will be held from 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Airport Area Kiwanis Club's watermelon stand at Virginia avenue and Whipple street in East Point.

Sponsoring the event in addition to the Kiwanians are the Atlanta Pilot Club, the East Point Pilot Club, the East Point Woman's Club, the East Point Junior Woman's Club and the Forget-Me-Not Garden Club.

Sam W. Denmark, Kiwanis president and chairman for the barbecue, said all proceeds (tickets are $1) will go to the Little Red Schoolhouse building fund. In the fund now is $7,000.

The directors say $10,000 is needed before construction of a new school for the children can begin.

The Little Red Schoolhouse, founded by the Airport Area Kiwanians in 1952, affords care and training for some 30 handicapped children who are ineligible for aid through other channels. It is located at 119 East Point St.

Parking Survey
East Point Parking Authority Chairman Cooper Smith has announced an off-street parking survey being coordinated by the Metropolitan Planning Commission is expected to be completed by July 1.

Tariff Cuts Bill Passed By House

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—The House today passed with only a shadow of past bitter debate a compromise bill to extend the reciprocal trade program three years and give the President new tariff-cutting powers.

A formal rollcall vote of 347 "ayes" and only 54 "noes" sent to the Senate the measure which would hand President Eisenhower much of the authority he sought to continue the New Deal-founded program.

Senate passage is expected quickly. The legislation would allow the President to trim U. S. tariffs up to 5 per cent a year for each of the three years until June 30, 1958, for a maximum of 15 per cent, in return for concessions offered by other nations on American goods.

The House acted after less than an hour's debate on the compromise measure today—a far cry from the tumultuous free trade-vs.-protection debate that saw the original bill squeeze by one and two vote margins in the House last February.

Democratic leaders, who were instrumental in pushing through the Eisenhower-backed bill in February, told the House today they supported the compromise "with reluctance" because of Senate-aided features aimed at giving American producers more protection.

Holder To Address Sandy Springs Assn.

Robert M. Holder, industrial engineer who helped develop the Peachtree Road industrial district, will address the Sandy Springs Businessmen's Assn. Thursday night.

Holder will outline real estate developments possible for Sandy Springs at a public dinner session at 7:30 p.m. in the Hammond School cafeteria.

Defendant Admits Bumping Judge, Finds Him Lenient 25 Years Later

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 14 (AP)—Traffic Judge M. D. Elston stopped abruptly in the midst of a court case today, scrutinized the defendant, and demanded:

"Was it you or your brother that knocked me down 25 years ago?"

Startled, Charles J. Stich, 47, of Jeffersonville, Ind., admitted sheepishly, "It was me, your honor."

Reporters learned later that Stich's car had knocked Elston down and injured him slightly in the long-ago accident.

Stich was in court today on a drunken driving charge. Elston ruled the evidence did not support this charge but fined Stich $100 on a public drunkenness count. This let Stich keep his driver's license.

Gunman Dead, 3 Injured In Manhattan Gun Duel

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—A trigger-happy holdup man, a one-time artist from a good family, was shot and killed by a motorcycle patrolman today in a downtown Manhattan gun duel.

Three other persons suffered serious bullet wounds. The echo of gunfire crackling among the tall buildings off lower Broadway sent hundreds of passersby scurrying for cover.

The gunman, fleeing with a $4,000 payroll, paused long enough to shoot down two men who dared give chase—one of them unarmed and the other carrying only a screwdriver.

A woman who had run into a diner for refuge was struck in the neck by a stray bullet that smashed through a window.

Police identified the gunman from fingerprints as John J. Antonioli, 26, formerly of New Rochelle, N. Y.

New Rochelle police said his father was a respected house painter, but that the son had turned to narcotics.

At the sound of the shots and commotion, Patrolman Aurelio De Filippi, 29, hopped from his motorcycle and gave chase on foot.

The gunman dodged among parked automobiles, then made a stand behind a parked station wagon.

De Filippi took cover behind a truck. He said he shouted, in English and Italian: "Throw your gun down and raise your hands"—but that his order was ignored. Then the patrolman "charged," he said, directly at Antonioli, emptying all six shots from his revolver.

Antonioli was found dead with a bullet through his head. Five shots had been discharged from a gun in his hand. The payroll lay beside him.

Police said Antonioli trailed Deana Panzer, 19, from a bank to the lobby of the building on Broadway. At gunpoint, he wrested the $4,000 from her. She screamed.

Joseph Sottolano, 43, Brooklyn, employed in the building as a handyman, grabbed a screwdriver and pursued the man. He was stopped with a bullet under the heart.

HELD FOR FORGERY—ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 14—Mrs. Wilma Plichta, 33, has admitted forging checks totaling $33,489 to pay off a blackmailer, who claimed he has picture of her seated on a man's lap while her husband was overseas.

Stream, N. Y., a passerby, gave chase. The gunman shot him in the pelvis.

Sometime during the wild episode, a bullet whistled into the diner and struck Adele Lamberti, 55, an investigator for the State Division of Industrial Relations.

Ike Will Fight Congress Opposition to Atomic Ship

By W. H. LAWRENCE

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 14—President Eisenhower and Republican congressional leaders mapped strategy today to save four administration projects which are in trouble on Capitol Hill.

They were concerned mainly with these measures:

1. An appropriation for the atom-powered merchant ship the President wants to send around the world as a "show-case" for his "Atoms for Peace" program. This was turned down by the joint House-Senate Committee on Atomic Energy.

2. The Military Manpower Reserve Program, pigeonholed by the House after an anti-segregation rider was added.

3. An appropriation to link the controversial Dixon-Yates steam plant to the transmission lines of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Money for this line was refused by the House Appropriations Committee.

4. The $101,000,000 highway program to be financed by bond issues outside the federal budget. Rejected by the Senate, which adopted a Democratic substitute, financed by higher taxes on gasoline.

Sen. William F. Knowland of California, Republican leader of the Senate, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts, House Republican leader, reported the President's determination to fight for these programs in the face of congressional rebuffs.

Knowland and Martin held their regular legislative conference with the President at the White House this morning.

They reported that most of the time was spent discussing these four programs and means by which the essential administration objectives could be attained.

Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said Eisenhower had expressed "strong feelings" about the atomic powered ship proposal.

"The President is very determined on this atomic ship and I don't think he intends to take this lying down," Bridges told newsmen.

Steelworkers Warn 'Dimes' Not Enough

PITTSBURGH, June 14 (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp. and the CIO United Steelworkers today scheduled a new round of wage negotiations for next Monday. The union indirectly has warned it is not interested in a "nickels and dimes" settlement.

The wage talks between Big Steel and the union were recessed last Thursday after the union privately spelled out its demands for a substantial pay increase.

Union President David J. McDonald has not said publicly what he would consider as a substantial wage hike. Many steel observers predict he will settle for an hourly wage hike of between 12 and 15 cents.

The union has—or is in the process of—presenting its demands for a pay increase to 95 other basic steel companies. Contracts with most of the firms expire at midnight June 30—the strike deadline.

convinced Adenauer would uphold the collective interests of the Western alliance in any meeting with the Soviets he may decide to attend.

They noted that even the Social Democratic opposition has united behind the Chancellor in rejecting any neutralist solution to the German problem of the kind that followed the visit to Moscow of Austrian Chancellor Raab a few months ago.

BIG THREE MEETING

Adenauer is expected to attend some of the meetings of the Big Three foreign ministers in New York on Thursday and Friday. Secretary of State Dulles, Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan of Britain and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay of France will discuss plans for their meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in San Francisco later this month.

The San Francisco session, in observance of the U.N.'s 10th anniversary, is expected to include discussion of an agenda for the meeting "at the summit" of heads of government in Geneva. In their joint statement the President and Chancellor Adenauer said they had devoted a large part of their discussion to "relationships between the nations of the free world and the Soviet Union," particularly Soviet willingness to take part in a four-power conference and the Soviet invitation to the Chancellor to visit Moscow.

"COMMON ADHERENCE"

"Recent favorable developments in Europe," the two statesmen held, "are the result of the consistent sound policies followed by the United States, the Federal Republic and their allies."

They said that as a result of their discussions they were "re-assured that there is a very broad field of understanding between them," and convinced that future policy would require "closest cooperation" based upon "common adherence to the furtherance of a just and enduring peace among the nations of the world."

Atlantan Is Killed In Gwinnett Wreck

A 28-year-old Atlantan was killed Tuesday afternoon in an auto wreck two miles east of Snellville, in Gwinnett County, on U.S. 78, the state patrol said. State patrolmen listed the victim as Claudie Pearson, 28. No street address was given.

some later time," before he left the United States in July.

According to Hagerty, the morning meeting was "a preliminary discussion" and the conversation this afternoon at the State Department was held at Eisenhower's request.

Menon also saw Vice President Nixon at the Capitol this afternoon. He returned to New York this evening, where he is India's permanent representative to the United Nations.

At National Airport, on his arrival here this morning, Menon sounded the theme that relaxation of tensions was a two-way street. The United States and Communist China each could make "some contribution," he asserted.

"You are concerned about your nationals there," he said, "and they are concerned about their nationals here." He added: "I am sure the United States will do what is right and proper."

His reference to Chinese Nationals in the United States, presumably the several thousand Chinese students at universities and colleges here, had been anticipated by United States officials.

FAMILY REUNITED

Meets Sister For 1st Time In His Life

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—R. J. Ledger, a new member of Parliament, met his sister today for the first time in his life.

She was the third member of his family who—until a few days ago—he hadn't seen for 32 years.

His story is that of a poor boy who makes good, a destitute family lost in the world's biggest city.

It began to unfold when Ledger, a Royal Air Force veteran and new Labor member for Romford District, rose in the House of Commons last Friday, cleared his throat and began his maiden speech.

"In 1923," he said, "the father of a family of three decided he could no longer stay at home. The mother, who was pregnant, was left with the responsibility of caring for three young children."

"She wanted to go to work, but she couldn't for there was nowhere to put the children. If she didn't go to work, the next child would be born in the workhouse. So, the children were sent to a Barnardo Home."

The Dr. Barnardo Homes, supported by private charity, care for foundlings, orphans and the unfortunate children of parents too poor to support them.

"Thirteen years later," Ledger said, "one of those children went out into the world to fight the normal battles and is, today, a member of this House. But—I have no idea of where my brother, sisters or any other members of my family might be."

Conservatives and Laborites alike listened without a sound.

Saturday morning one sister, Mrs. Iris Diplock, got in touch with her brother. The next day William A. Ledger, a brother, located the new member of Parliament for the second reunion.

The British Broadcasting Corp. put Ledger on a Sunday night television show. Mrs. Joan Baker, the sister who hadn't been born when the other children were put in the home, telephoned and today her brother invited her to the Commons for lunch.

To See Comet, Get Up Early

MT. HAMILTON, Calif., June 14 (AP)—Want to see a new comet? Then be up just before dawn, get away from artificial lights as far as possible and look at the northeast sky about 15 or 25 degrees above the horizon. Binoculars will help.

The brightest star in that part of the sky is Capella. The comet is about five degrees (about 10 times the diameter of the moon) west of that star. The comet has a star-like body and a tail length three or four times the moon's diameter.

From the University of California's Lick Observatory here Dr. Hamilton M. Jeffers and Miss Elizabeth Roemer spotted the new sky figure this morning, 48 hours after its discovery by an astronomer in Czechoslovakia.

Astronomers usually discover several new comets each year. This is the fifth one so far in 1955.

But most of them are visible only through telescopes. Naked-eye comets are rare.

Chaplain's Wife Cast In Theater Play Here

By LAURA BARRE

The singers and dancers in the Theater Under the Stars productions this summer at Chastain Memorial amphitheater will include men and women from all walks of life.

Virginia Collins, one of the singers, is a case in point. Mrs. Collins is the wife of the Episcopal chaplain to students at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tennessee.

She is active in church work, a devoted mother to her three-year-old daughter Melissa and the kind of housekeeper who can manage a 12-room house and be prepared at all times for unexpected guests.

ROUTINE THINGS

But those are the routine things a clergyman's wife is expected to do.

In addition, Ginny Collins is a member of Sewanee's Purple Masque Dramatic Club (she has taken leading roles in two productions this spring). She directed the Sewanee Varieties for '55, and she frequently sings in concerts and at civic club meetings.

Mrs. Collins is no newcomer to the entertainment world. She made her stage debut in a Lions Club minstrel show at Carlinville, Ill., her hometown, when she was three.

In the eighth grade she played the lead role in a production of Tom Sawyer and took part in a great many benefit shows.

WENT TO NEW YORK

After her graduation from high school, Mrs. Collins went to New York City, where she joined the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Co., called the "Provincetown Players," a Greenwich Village group.

She was a member of the "Carousel" cast for a year and a half, and during that time she did one of the understudies for the musical's comedy lead.

Even her marriage to the Rev. Mr. Collins had a stage "angle." "He proposed the night 'Carousel' opened in New Haven, Conn., and we had our engagement party the night the show opened in Boston," she said. "The

FIRST REPORTING SYSTEM HERE

U.S. Employees' Accident Rate Low

By BERT SPENCER

Accidents among the Atlanta area's more than 15,000 federal employees cost Uncle Sam an estimated $15,660 during the first three months of this year.

The accident rate, and the cost, however, were considerably lower than the national industrial injury-frequency rate and its cost, even though the Atlanta figures included laborers at government facilities where serious accidents are likely to occur.

There are no comparable federal accident figures with which to compare Atlanta's. Atlanta has the first complete accident reporting system in the federal service.

That was the story of the government's anti-accident campaign here, as told by Brunswick

A. Bagdon, president of the Atlanta Federal Safety Council.

Since President Eisenhower issued his 1950 executive order for concentrated safety programs in all branches of the federal government, about 80 areas all over the country have organized local councils under the Federal Safety Council in Washington.

All of the agencies stepped up their safety campaigns with placards, slogans and other educational features. None, however, could tell what progress they were making over a specific area because of the lack of adequate accident reporting.

The Atlanta council developed a reporting system and put it into effect Jan. 1. Immediately, national officers of the safety bureau urged other local councils to follow Atlanta's lead.

Here is the first report on federal accidents in Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb, for the first quarter of 1955:

There were 862 accidents among an average 15,410 workers. Only 52 accidents resulted in the loss of at least one man-day. While 7,947,569 man-hours were worked, 9,939 were lost to absences because of accidents.

Within the period, the accident frequency rate, established by a general formula, dropped from 8.8 in January to 7.1 in February to only 4.1 in March. Bagdon emphasized, however, that the decrease might have been seasonal, and that a longer period would have to be considered to establish whether there is a trend toward fewer accidents.

What Pressures Pass Tax Rises?

By M. L. ST. JOHN

What sort of pressure is the Griffin administration using to get the tax program passed?

Past governors have traded highways for legislative votes on crucial tests. Past governors have put powerful state officials on the floor of the House and Senate to check on the votes and try to influence the members. Past governors have sent the word down to local people with whom the legislators do business, seeking to put pressure at home on the legislators. Past governors have posted the roll calls on their walls—to use them as guides in dispensing favors.

What is Gov. Griffin doing?

There were reports that the governor was pressuring the legislators during the first week of the session, but there was but little evidence of it. The governor talked with individual lawmakers, of course, but his office was not jammed with legislators being summoned to him.

Sunday night, Gov. Griffin, who has had experience as a legislator, did an unusual thing. He went to the hotel, knocking on doors of legislators, and visiting with them. It followed the same tactics he used in going out to see the legislators in their home areas before calling the session. Other governors had called the legislators to Atlanta for pre-session caucuses. A former legislator and a former lieutenant governor, Griffin knows how to appeal to the vanity of the lawmakers.

Monday the administration used pressure wide open.

The governor's office was filled with legislators before the meetings opened. He called others down to his office while the Senate and House were in session. The governor talked with the legislators individually or in small groups.

Some leaving the conferences with the governor said Griffin had simply asked them to go along with the program. Others said they had had their "arms twisted," but they did not elaborate.

Whether the governor spelled it out for them or not, the legislators, invited to his office, had a feeling that they would be in a better position to get state or administration favors if they voted "yes."

OFFICIALS ON FLOOR

When the administration faced its first really tough test—the cigarette tax increase—it had state officials lobbying on the floor during debate and while the roll was being called. At one time, Rep. Bill Parker of Appling County, fighting the bill, had the clerk read the rule that removed these officials from the House floor.

Rep. Frank Twitty of Mitchell County, who served as House floor leader during the Talmadge administration, urged the members to "vote your convictions"—"don't think you have to go along with the administration."

Which brings this conclusion: The Griffin administration pressure on this bill didn't approach the pressure which was exerted at times when Twitty was Talmadge's floor leader. Nor does it rival the pressure used at times during the Arnall administration.

COUNTER PRESSURE

Floor Leader Denmark Groover said the pressure wasn't coming from one side of the fence. While he denied administration pressure, he contended that lobbyists for powerful tobacco manufacturers were exerting much pressure against the bill.

Speaking of pressure, what are the groups which normally seek to influence legislation doing at this session?

The Georgia Education Assn. and the Georgia Association of County Commissioners, who frequently are at odds with each other in the division of school and road funds by the state, are united in support of the Griffin request for more taxes.

Business and labor, frequently in conflict over legislation, are together in opposition to the program.

Georgia Farm Bureau President H. L. Wingate opposes the cigarette tax increase.

Chest-Council Meet Scheduled for June 22

The Delegate Assembly of the Community Chest-Council will meet at 3:30 p.m., June 22, in the Life of Georgia Auditorium according to Richard H. Rich, president.

Officers reporting at the meeting will be Mr. Rich, Frederick G. Storey, chairman of the planning division; Hix H. Green, chairman of the campaign division; George S. Craft, chairman of the budget committee; Edgar J. Forio, public relations chairman; and Joseph Birnie, treasurer.

Gets Fellowship

Miss Joyce Thomas, 3660 N. Stratford Rd., has been selected as one of three Georgians to receive a graduate fellowship in teaching offered jointly by Vanderbilt University and George Peabody College for Teachers. Miss Thomas is a faculty member of the Westminster School for Girls.

The shadows cast on Miller Wes Santee's amateurism have yet to be cleared, it was discovered Tuesday after Avery Brundage asked the AAU to investigate Santee's status.

Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, filed his request from Paris to AAU Secretary Dan Ferris in

Sports in Brief

New York. Ferris passed the word to the Missouri Valley Association, which must be the first to act on questions of the University of Kansas runner's eligibility.

In Kansas City, Marion Miller of the Missouri Valley AAU said Santee's expenses are still under investigation and will be until the AAU receives his travel permits, showing how much he was paid for the three California meets in question. The permits are now two weeks overdue.

Santee, on active reserve duty with the Marine Corps at Camp Pendleton, Calif., had this comment: "It's simply a newspaper story."

Cracker Fan Files Suit Against Vol

An $8,000 damage suit was filed in Fulton Superior Court Tuesday against Nashville outfielder Ben Downs and the Nashville baseball club by the father of an 11-year-old youth who charged the boy was hit by Downs' thrown bat Monday night at Ponce de Leon Park.

Vol Manager Joe Schultz and Downs were served summonses before Tuesday night's game.

The father, J. F. Finleyson of 3596 Belvedere Lane, filed the suit for his son, Michael, charging that Downs' act of slinging the bat after flying out in the last inning of Monday's game with Atlanta was "willful, intentional and wanton."

Atty. Mims Wilkerson, representing Finleyson, said the youth was under medical treatment for the severe laceration on his left arm and shoulder when Downs' bat sailed into the stands. Wilkerson said that Downs, whose fly was the game-ending out, tossed the bat behind him without looking.

SWEDEN KENTUCKY BABE Reds Hail Anderson On Eve of Lift Meet

MOSCOW, June 14 (AP)—American weightlifter Paul Anderson of Toccoa, Ga., was hailed today as "the strongest man in the world" in the Soviet press as the American weight lifting team finished training for its match tomorrow with a picked Russian team.

Any Soviet-American event creates tremendous interest here and a sellout crowd of 20,000 is assured for this match to be held at an outdoor arena.

Soviet Sport, Russia's leading newspaper, devoted a two-column article today hailing the American team.

"One remarkable thing," the article said, "is that the United States is composed of various nationalities. There is Charles Vinci, an Italian; Stanislaus Stanczyk, a Pole; Paul Anderson, a Swede from Kentucky and Tommy Kono, a Japanese."

American athletes are being rushed around town from opera to ballet theaters to the circus but they managed to find time to train at the Dynamo Stadium where Soviet reporters interviewed them.

Rock Hill Club On the Rocks; Loop Periled

ROCK HILL, S.C., June 14 (AP). Directors met in a "make or break" session tonight to determine whether the Rock Hill Chiefs should fold — and apparently break up the Class B Tri-State League for this season.

Tomorrow is pay day and the club was beset with financial troubles.

In advance of the meeting, the Rock Hill Herald said it had polled many of the directors and predicted they would vote to forfeit the franchise to the league.

League President Bobby Hipps of Asheville said yesterday he knows of no other community where the franchise might be placed. He added the league could not operate the club as a road team.

Only 22 persons of 400 invited attended a pledge breakfast yesterday. And most of those attending were club and league officials. A bout $4,000 was pledged, much of it conditionally. The Chiefs have said they need $60,000 a year to keep going and the team is taking in about $30,000 a year, including concession rents.

The league has been operating this season with four clubs. Third-place Rock Hill, Greenville, Spartanburg and Asheville.

Swede Phillips Gets FSU Post In Puerto Rico

Dr. Herbert (Swede) Phillips, former head coach and athletic director at Atlanta Bass High, has accepted a position with Florida State University and, in the coming school year, will direct their "Operation Bootstrap" branch in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Phillips, whose 1950 Bass football eleven won the City League championship, received his doctor's degree a year ago at University of Georgia. He has taught at Tech High, Bass and Sylvan and will be on leave of absence from the Atlanta school system. —ROBERTS.

Shrine Horse Show Opens Stand Today

Twelve States Represented
As Trainers Get Early Start

By MICKEY LOGUE

Atlanta's Chastain Memorial Park—content to let Davy Crockett rule as "King of the Wild Frontier"—Wednesday launches its four-day reign as King of Southeastern Horsedom.

The 12th annual Greater Atlanta Shrine horse show's first afternoon session starts at 1:30 with night festivities slated for 7. But for a Tuesday visitor on horse show eve, the fun had already begun.

Leading riders and mounts from throughout the nation flocked into Chastain Park and started preparations aimed toward "Blue Ribbons." Twelve states were represented by equine fanciers.

All stages of precompetition care were being administered the horses. Some trainers exercised and "sharpened" their mounts on the show ring track. Grooms had brushes doing overtime duty. Fine harness and walking horses got their tails "set" in the latest fashion.

Copan, a defending working hunter champion, received a late-afternoon feeding from owner and rider, Mrs. Joan Morgenthau of Birmingham, Ala. In two outings this spring—at Memphis, Tenn., and Birmingham—Copan won his class.

However, Mrs. Morgenthau, who learned to ride in her native England, was making no predictions. "Two years in a row is a big order," she said.

Garrymore, world's champion five-gaited gelding with a champion comedian's name, came in for his share of care from owner Miss Jolie Richardson, Atlanta, and caretaker Anthony Hamilton. Although he once was invited to appear as the mystery "person" on the television show "I've Got a Secret," Garrymore was not named for the funnymen. "He's named after an Irish legend," Miss Richardson reports.

The 6-year-old boy is rapidly becoming a legend himself. He's missed the blue ribbon only once in his career.

Mrs. Gene Eaton Schuff made the longest trip to Atlanta. She brought Sun's Golden Girl, a Palomino Tennessee walking horse, from her Phoenix, Ariz., home.

W. S. Ford, too, was a long way from home, traveling from St. Louis, Mo., with Misty Miss, another Tennessee walking horse.

Pearls I Am of Bud Baker Stables was another top-flight early arrival.

Among other out-of-staters whose entries were on hand were Dr. Charles L. Brown, New Orleans, La.; Cas Walker, Knoxville, Tenn.; Ormond Biltmore, Ormond Beach, Fla.; Miles Wright, Charlotte, N.C.; Duncan and Eaton Stables, Inverness, Miss., and H. O. Davis, Montgomery.

Some 325 entries from 75 states will compete for prizes totaling $10,000. Proceeds from the show, sponsored by Yaarab Mounted Patrol, benefit the Scottish Rite Hospital.

Atlanta's Harrison Trails Wiechmas In First Day's Southern Qualifying

Ex-Deac Leads by One With 71;
Veteran Barnes Soars at 81

LINVILLE, N.C., June 14 (AP)—Phil Wiechmas, former Wake Forest College player from Harlan, Ky., was the only player to match par 71 today over the wind-swept Linville Golf Club course as the Southern Golf Assn. amateur tournament opened with the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds.

Weichman, No. 1 player at Wake Forest as a freshman two years ago, dropped out of school during the winter but hopes to resume studies in the fall.

His 34-37 left him one stroke ahead of Charles Harrison, winner of the last three Atlanta city titles.

An entry list of 223 players, second highest in the tournament's 49 years, resulted in a playing day of almost 13 hours.

The field will play a second round over the 6,634-yard course tomorrow after which the low 32 will begin championship match play Thursday, ending with 36-hole finals Saturday.

British amateur champion Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., who has won the last two Southern, is exempt from qualifying.

For the first six hours, shifting winds that at times reached gusts of 36 miles an hour made life miserable for the early birds.

A three-way tie for third place involved Keely Brice, Charlotte, N.C.; Ed Gravely, Rocky Mount, N.C., and Hillman Robbins, Memphis, Tenn., last year's national collegiate champion.

Walker Cupper Billy Joe Patton of nearby Morganton had to par every hole on the back nine for a 75 after going out in 39.

The combination of the wind and cold and a rugged rolling mountain course was too much for many established Southern players to master. Tommy Barnes, Atlanta veteran who has won the tournament twice, shot an 81.

The halfway mark of the four-man team competition found a Tennessee team setting the pace with a 301 aggregate, paced by the 73 of Hillman Robbins. In second place with 304 was a Georgia team led by Charles Harrison's 72.

Eighteen holes tomorrow will conclude the team competition. Other Georgia scores as follows: Jake Howard Jr., Augusta, Ga., 36-39; Arnold Blum, Macon, Ga., 38-37; Doug Sanders, Cedartown, Ga., 36-38; Jack Lumpkin, Athens, Ga., 36-41; Louis Hill, Atlanta, 38-39; 77; Burgess Moore, Rome, Ga., 38-39; 77; Ed Barnes, Atlanta, 41-37; 78; Sonny Ellis, Atlanta, 36-39; 78; Al Samt, Marietta, Ga., 38-40; 78; Carling Dinkler Jr., Atlanta, 37-41; 78; Rosier Little, Marietta, Ga., 37-41; 78.

Won't Be Card Scout, Says Stanky

ST. LOUIS, June 14 (AP)—The front office of the St. Louis Cardinals and Eddie Stanky, deposed manager of the club, disagreed today over Stanky's future assignment with the club, if any.

General Manager Dick Meyer of the Cardinals announced that he and Stanky, who was at his home in Fairhope, Ala., reached a "complete agreement" on a scouting assignment for Stanky. But a later statement from Stanky indicated it was something less than complete.

Both Meyer and Stanky did agree that Stanky had been given permission to negotiate with any other major league club.

Meyer announced at the same time that Stanky had been given an assignment to scout players in the top minor leagues for the Cardinals.

Stanky, at his home, said he had turned down a scouting offer by the Cardinals, at least for the time being.

"I have received permission to negotiate with any other major league club that I wish," Stanky said. "I was offered a scouting assignment in the St. Louis Cardinals organization which I did not take at this time. I wanted a job in the majors."

The apparent conflict in their views as to Stanky's status could not be resolved immediately because Meyer left by train for New York immediately after making his announcement and could not be contacted.

A Cardinal spokesman later conceded Stanky had rejected a suggestion by the club that he serve as a scout in the Pacific Coast League.

George Stabilizes Policy, Kefauver Declares

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) today described Sen. George (D-Ga.) as the "principal stabilizing force in American foreign policy" and called on President Eisenhower to take George to the forthcoming Big Four meeting.

Kefauver said in a speech prepared for the Senate: "I do not say this as a matter of flattery. Sen. George, with his great knowledge and experience, his integrity and his courage, has become, to my mind, the principal stabilizing force in American foreign policy. I would like to see him as a member of this delegation, not because as a Democrat he would lend to the delegation an air of bi-partisanship, but because of his ability and his character."

George has shown no interest in attending the meeting at the summit scheduled for July 18 at Geneva. Asked recently whether he would like to go along, he said with a smile that he neither travels in an airplane, except on extremely rare occasions, nor goes out at night.

Kefauver also suggested that George Kennon, former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt be members of the delegation.

'150 Club' Likes Ike in 1956

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Louis Marx, New York toy manufacturer and friend of President Eisenhower, said today he has started a "150 Club" fund raising drive to help win a second term for the President.

"The idea is to get down to the grass roots and to the young people," Marx said in a telephone interview from New York.

The businessman said under the plan which he started a month ago, each contributor gets a button showing he is a member of a Club, the CL representing roman numerals for 150.

Marx said the plan is not a chain letter idea because it has a stopping point at $36,150.

First, a committee member is appointed who donates $150. He gets 150 persons known as "organizing members" to put up $15 each as an "extra" contribution above what he would normally give to the campaign. Each organizing member gets 150 others to donate $1.50 each.

"The sole purpose is to nominate and elect President Eisenhower," Marx said.

The bidding:
 North 3 spades Pass
 East Pass
 South 3 no trump Pass
 West Pass

Opening lead: Queen of clubs. South appeared to be guilty of gross extravagance when he discarded a sure trick in the play of today's hand. But he made the appropriation in the interests of an advertising campaign that in the end paid off.

Declarer was Arthur Miller of Fort Worth, Tex., who teamed with Clifford Russell of Miami Beach, Fla., to win the Men's Pair championship at the South-eastern Regional tournament recently held at Miami Beach.

Mr. Russell chose to open with a pre-emptive bid of three spades, and Mr. Miller responded with a call of three no trump. Shooting for a maximum score North decided to pass, though the more normal procedure would have been to carry on to a game in spades. West opened the queen of clubs and declarer won the ace. A spade was led at once and West held up until the second spade. South had to make a discard and the obvious choice is the useless little club. Mr. Miller, however, took time out for a little calculation. It was reasonable to assume that the entire field would wind up in a spade contract and experience no difficulty in making 11 tricks for a score of 450. While it is true he could discard a club and, if West failed to shift to diamonds, he would bring in 12 tricks at no trump, he decided that 11 tricks at no trump would produce the same top score. It was of the utmost importance to avoid a diamond shift, for such a play would hold declarer to three no trump and, almost surely, a low score. He decided, therefore, to make the best effort to induce a shift to hearts rather than diamonds. He discarded the ten of hearts.

West decided that the club continuation was futile and realized that his side could salvage tricks only in the red suits. A diamond shift would have yielded the defense three tricks, but West could

DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Woman's Life Changed By Compliment Club

Miriam G., aged 44, is the wife of a prominent judge.

"Dr. Crane, I am a changed personality," she glowingly informed me.

"And I owe it to your 'Compliment Club' project. Our children were grown and married, so the judge and I had settled down into a comfortable middle-age existence.

"But one day I read about your 'Compliment Club' experiment, and decided to try it out. 'Oh, I'll admit that my primary aim was somewhat selfish, too, for I had degenerated into a typical hypochondriac.

"For example, I had always held a fear of cancer, so I would imagine all sorts of ailments. And I had consulted specialists many times, but they always pronounced me in sound health.

"When I read your advice about positive thinking, I decided maybe the 'Compliment Club' would be good medicine for me.

"Well, I started out with great enthusiasm to pay my three honest compliments every day.

"All went well until about the third week. Then, at the dinner table one evening, I happened to recall that I had paid only two compliments that day.

"Since I didn't want to break my good record, I put on my coat and strolled out upon the street after dinner, just looking for somebody to whom I could pay a sincere bit of praise.

"Finally, I stopped at our neighboring drugstore and overheard the sales girl give a fine sales talk about a new cosmetic product, so I paid her my third compliment for the day.

"This experiment has been the best insurance for happiness I have ever seen.

"It has taken my attention off myself and forced me to become a social detective, observing my companions for their merits and virtues.

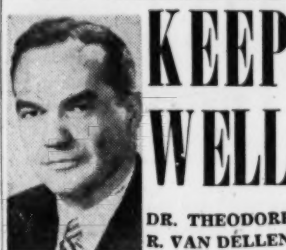

"As a result, I have started back into greater activity in my church and am now teaching a teen-age group of girls.

"Meanwhile, my thoughts have turned outward upon people so I am not such a worry-wart over my health. The judge says I really owe you $1,000 for freeing me from my constant dread of cancer."

So send for the "Compliment Club" booklet. Address your request to me in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime.

Last week we were asked whether wearing copper jewelry would relieve arthritis. This may seem silly yet charms and luck pieces played an important role in medicine in days of yore.

If each of us would confess frankly we would have to admit harboring some superstition to which we adhere faithfully. Our allegiance is unconscious and more often than not, the habit dates from childhood.

We have all encountered wearers of horseshoe rings which are said to ward off rheumatism. Gold wedding bands were once looked upon as cures for warts, sties and sore eyes. The ring could be made even more potent by passing a handkerchief through it; this maneuver insured protective qualities against contagious diseases.

New Trial Is Ordered In $1 Million Will Suit

The Georgia Supreme Court Tuesday ordered a new trial for Northwestern University in its suit challenging a will left by Mrs. Jeannette C. Mix of Americus.

The university claims Mrs. Mix bequeathed $1,100,000 to Northwestern for medical research.

In a unanimous decision, the justices overruled a directed verdict made in favor of Charles F. Crisp by Sumter County Superior Court Judge Cleveland Rees. Crisp, Americus banker, had been named executor of the will.

The Supreme Court held that Judge Rees was in error in denying the university's motion for a new trial after the directed judgment. Mrs. Mix died Oct. 2, 1953, leaving a 1939 will which bequeathed the bulk of her estate to Northwestern, where her late husband, Dr. Charles L. Mix, was a medical staff member for 24 years.

However, attached to the will was a codicil (amendment) dated Sept. 24, 1953, which provided that the bulk of the estate was to go to Crisp, Dr. Russell Thomas of Americus and her nephew, Donald B. Caldwell, as trustees for establishing the Charles Mix Memorial Fund.

Northwestern attorneys contested the will when a petition to probate it was filed by Crisp. The attorneys claimed that the codicil was executed by Mrs. Mix when she did not have "testamentary capacity."

The university also claimed that Dr. Thomas, as business agent and personal physician of Mrs. Mix, used "undue influence" over her to get her to sign the codicil.

In the court's opinion, the justices noted evidence that Dr. Thomas owed $30,000 to the estate of Mrs. Mix.

The Supreme Court held that the lower court was in error on several points concerning admission of evidence and testimony.

Mrs. Grippo Fills N. Atlanta Post

The North Atlanta City Council Tuesday night unanimously elected Mrs. Ruth Grippo to fill the unexpired council term of Mayor J. L. Spencer.

The council also authorized one-hour parking on the west side of Peachtree road in the Brookhaven business district.

Mayor Spencer was sworn in a week ago.

8 in Hospital at Gordon After Drinking Ditto Fluid

Eight soldier-prisoners at Camp Gordon's disciplinary barracks were still in a hospital Tuesday nearly a week after Army authorities said they drank a mixture containing methyl alcohol.

Authorities said Charles Berry, Newnan, Ga., was partially blind as a result and described the condition of Richard Frye, Charlotte, N.C., as serious.

The eight apparently made the drink by straining "ditto fluid," a solvent containing wood alcohol, through a loaf of bread, Camp Gordon officials said. They did not know where the men obtained the fluid.

The first of the eight reported to the camp hospital last Tuesday. The others came in sick during the next few days.

Bus Station Porter Shot Fatally; Atlantan Held

A 48-year-old Atlantan was jailed Tuesday on suspicion of murder in the shooting of a porter at the busy Greyhound Bus Terminal, police said.

Det. Sgt. L. L. Hause said Carl Jackson Rogers, of a 13th St. address, was arrested following the slaying of Fleming Lee, 52, of 988 Simpson St., NW.

Sgt. Hause quoted Rogers as saying Lee had been "picking at me and bothering me for several years."

Passengers on the Greyhound bus terminal platform scattered in every direction as the gunfire broke out at 1:20 p.m.

Ptl. T. V. Mullinax, in the lobby, said he saw Rogers standing on the platform with a pistol in his hand.

As Rogers entered the lobby, Mullinax grabbed him. Ptl. O. L. Kilpatrick and R. L. Rhodes hurried in to help subdue Rogers.

Sgt. Hause said Lee, a bus station employe for 25 years, was shot in the chest with a .38-caliber pistol. He died shortly after arriving at the Grady Hospital emergency clinic.

Work Nears On Traffic Court Here

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Work will begin shortly on Atlanta's $500,000 traffic court at Central and Trinity avenues, SW. J. T. Bourn, office manager of J. A. Jones Construction Co., said the company plans to start work as soon as final details are completed. Mayor Hartsfield Tuesday affixed his signature to final drafts of the contract and announced "work can begin now."

In the meantime, Asst. City Atty. Charlie Murphy is planning an appeal of a decision by Fulton Superior Court Judge Ralph Pharr denying the new court jurisdiction over all misdemeanor traffic offenses including drunk driving. Pharr last week held a legislative act empowering the city to try such cases is unconstitutional.

Jury Decides For Doctor In Suit Here

A U.S. District Court jury Tuesday found in favor of a prominent Atlanta doctor accused of neglect and unskilled practice in a civil action.

The jury rendered a verdict in Dr. Harold McDonald's favor after Jesse V. Liles of Gadsden, Ala., had asked $100,000 damages from the physician.

Liles had contended he suffered because two drainage tubes were left in his body following an operation by Dr. McDonald. Doctors testified McDonald had handled the case correctly, including a request that Liles come back for a checkup for which the patient failed to return.

Court Backs Clearing of Lattimore

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—A division in the U.S. Court of Appeals today upheld a lower court's dismissal of a two-count perjury indictment returned last October against Owen Lattimore.

Since the government made the appeal, the tie vote had the effect of affirming the action of Dist. Judge Luther W. Youngdahl. He threw out the charges Jan. 18 as "formless and obscure."

As is customary when appellate courts divide equally, no opinion was issued, nor was it announced how the judges voted. The recent death of Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens created a vacancy on the court.

DECLINED TO COMMENT

Both the Justice Department and the U. S. Atty. Gen. A. R. C. declined to comment on the government's next move. Its alternatives appeared to be: (1) ask the supreme court to review the case and overturn the Court of Appeals, or (2) go ahead and bring Lattimore to trial on five perjury charges remaining outstanding against him from a 1952 indictment.

The 1954 indictment alleged Lattimore, controversial Far Eastern specialist, swore falsely when he told the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee he had never been (1) a follower of the Communist line or (2) a promoter of Communist causes.

UPHELD KEY COUNT

It was returned after Judge Youngdahl dismissed the key count, along with three others, of the original indictment. The Court of Appeals upheld Youngdahl on the key count of the original indictment and one other, but reinstated two counts.

The keystone of the 1952 indictment charged Lattimore lied when he said he had never been a Communist sympathizer or promoter of Communist causes.

The appellate court's decision hinged on the word "sympathizer." It called it "invalidly vague."

Dulles Raps Voting Soviet As Aggressor

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles today opposed a move in Congress to ask that the United Nations brand Soviet Russia an aggressor. He said it was not likely to succeed and "would be widely interpreted as an effort to prejudice" the Big Four meeting at Geneva.

Dulles expressed his views in a letter to Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio), made public today.

Nevertheless, some members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee pressed for early house action on a resolution dealing with the subject. That group has approved the resolution.

Rep. Judd (R-Minn.) told the House Rules Committee that adoption of the resolution would "greatly strengthen the hands" of American representatives in next month's meeting with Russia "at the summit."

The Rules Committee took under advisement whether to clear the resolution for House action. If adopted by the Congress, the resolution would merely express the feelings of the legislators without being binding on the administration.

Scelba Wins Delay

ROME, June 14 (AP)—Premier Mario Scelba today won a nine-day delay in the crucial Chamber of Deputies test of his coalition government. Debate on a non-confidence motion had been scheduled to start today.

One of the prettiest new sunglasses that I've seen is attached to a lei necklace of tiny flowers threaded through a chain of plastic links.

They Had To Decorate With the Wrong Colors

By YOLANDE GWIN

When Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Poage married last year they moved into an apartment at 1410 Peachtree St., NW.

They had planned their decorating scheme—very modern and with a color motif of gray and black.

But they had failed to reckon with the apartment owners who had freshened up the unit in their best spic and span manner for the bride and groom. In fact, they had even painted the walls and woodwork pale green—one of the traditional bridal colors.

"What will we do?" they asked each other as they took one look at their first home. The walls were the wrong color. The windows in the living room were not centered on the end wall, and the opposite wall was one huge closet door which hid a bed. And an exposed radiator sat right in front of the window defying removal.

PROBLEMS

"Those were our first decorating problems," said the former Barbara Bridges, "so we rolled up our sleeves and started to work. We had to count our pennies and we had to use our ideas to get the right furnishings."

Mr. Poage made the built-in cases beneath the windows with fake accordion-type doors in the center where the radiator was placed. This entire structure was painted black.

Mrs. Poage said she "took off one Saturday for the nearest mill and bought some unbleached bark cloth."

ENTIRE WALL

"I made the draperies, the draw type, and hung them across the entire wall space to achieve width. I did the same thing for the other end of the room over the closet door. These were made floor-length. Tom made a coffee table by using the top of a round table and some manufactured legs. He also made a cocktail table we use by the TV set. He also made end tables for our couch."

The Poages decided to have all the furniture black, which has made a startling as well as a very attractive contrast to the pale green background. Butterfly chairs, one black and the other orange, are inviting spots.

"I made a mistake in trying to make the curtain rods for my bedroom," said the attractive young wife. "I took the 'do-it-yourself' idea too seriously. They worked all right, but after I had struggled with them for weeks trying to get the desired length by adding and subtracting, I discovered just what I wanted all made in a local store!"

Fascinated with archaeology, Mrs. Poage incorporated this study into decorating accessories for her apartment. Three large acoustical tiles hung on the wall form effective backgrounds for rare savage masks. They are black, too, as are several black figures used as conversation pieces throughout the apartment.

"I tease Barbara by saying, 'I've got her behind bars for life,'" said the young husband.

Municipal Theater's Director Wed

Romance, other than that involving the Student Prince and the Vagabond King, halted work at the Municipal Theater Under-the-Stars Tuesday.

At least long enough for technical director Edmund Glover to stage a production of his own, and take a lovely Spanish blonde as his bride.

She is Prudy Calvin, or was until the Rev. A. C. Peacock of Ben Hill, officiating in the ordinary's office at the Fulton County Courthouse, read the nuptial service that made her Mrs. Glover.

The couple met 14 years ago when both were connected with the Pasadena Playhouse. Since then each has played in movies, the legitimate stage, radio and television, with Mr. Glover's name appearing on programs all the way from New York to Australia.

During the interim, Prudy remained in California, and when he returned two years ago to be in pictures for RKO, they became engaged. She flew here Monday from Los Angeles to meet her fiancé.

The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Emanuel Calvin of Los Angeles. Mr. Glover is a native of Vancouver, Canada, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Glover of Glasgow, Scotland.

After the ceremony, performed at 5 o'clock, the bridegroom took the rest of the day off, but because the show must go on, he will be back at Chastain Park today, hard at work on the opening production, Showboat.

He and his bride will be at home for the summer at 2244 Virginia Pl. in Peachtree Hills.

GLAMOROUS JACKET IN WHITE LEATHER
Has a Soft Feel and a Graceful Drape

New Leather Jackets Are Sleek and Softer

Leather in skillful hands can have a graceful drape and become as soft as silk and as sleek as satin.

In terms of spring it's made into handsome little kidskin jackets, in cool pastels, that wear beautifully for town and travel.

Leathers are being beaded, pleated, and softened into glamorous formals, and lightened into clothes for active sports, tailored into impeccable city suits, relaxed into fireside clothes.

Designer Samuel Robert has come forth with a collection in a great variety of silhouettes, and provides leather with round-the-clock roles for every occasion.

The collection stresses casuals but with a dramatic departure for this medium. Flower colors are highlighted, including pinks, blues, and lemon tones.

These kidskins can be cleaned with just a damp cloth, thus white and pale pastels are as easy to keep clean as cotton, but with luxury always associated with leather.

Engineer Officers Wives Club Honors Mrs. Withers, Founder

When members of the Engineer Officers Wives Club in this area met for luncheon Monday at the Officers Club at Ft. McPherson, they honored Mrs. George K. Withers who organized the group and who served as chairman for the first year.

Mrs. Withers was presented a beautiful evening bag, with Mrs. Charles G. Holle, wife of Gen. Holle, making the presentation.

Mrs. C. C. Baldwin and Mrs. James T. Haynes served as hostesses for the luncheon.

Mrs. Withers is the wife of Col. Withers, who will retire from Army duty at an early date. Gen. and Mrs. Holle will leave soon for Washington, D.C., where he will be chief of engineering construction.

DAILY GUIDE—This can be a day of much thinking, talking and action. Advertising, publicity, proclamations, agreements, statements from those in high places are likely to make this a day of many words.

It can be very social, too, especially for those born in Gemini. I am hoping that we don't keep so busy with the talk that we fail to see where it is leading us.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, GEMINI: This should be rather a special day for you this year with much social activity and more gifts than usual. There are to be some gradual changes developing, some may even come overnight this summer, and by next year some new cycles will start.

YOU CAN'T BEAT A SANDBOX FOR SOCIABILITY
Children Find Something Quiet, Satisfying in Sand

MARCIA WINN

Sandbox Is Ideal For Summer Play

"If you could afford only one nice plaything this summer, and your children were small, what would you get?" a reader asks.

A sandbox.

No other medium of play equals the sandbox for happy, creative, quiet, sociable hours of play.

Every child loves a swing, but if you have more than one child, one swing is not enough.

Moreover, the small child has to be pushed in the swing, and unless the swing seat is enclosed, there is the question of safety. (And he won't like being enclosed.)

A sandbox is different. It is safe. It is easy. It is commodious. As long as it has four corners, it can accommodate four children.

If it is not inclosed and is merely an inviting heap of sand, it can accommodate all who come.

ENDLESS FUN

The possibilities of the sandpile are infinite. Little boys can dig tunnels, make roads, fill and empty trucks, or merely shovel for hours on end.

Little girls can build castles, make cakes and cookies, or just cover their fingers and toes.

Children seem to find something tremendously quieting and satisfying in sand; they will play in it literally by the hour with rarely a bout of screaming, kicking, or fighting.

A sandbox is not merely an investment for one summer but for years to come, as it lures the 9 and 10-year-old as relentlessly as it does the baby just starting to walk.

Therefore, it should be sturdy. Aluminum bottoms are excellent as they are rustproof and lasting. If you can afford a waterproof cover—tarpaulin or plastic—child and sand are much better off.

The best sand is clean, washed white sand and, with small children, not too much at a time.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN

This can be purchased in 100-pound bags or a yard at a time. Sand of course, does get dirty and gets carried away—in fists, shoes, buckets, and pockets, to say nothing of hair.

No matter how vigilant the parents, at least three other factors are going to enter in, and you might as well give up from the start:

1. Unless the sandbox is on the roof, completely separated from the earth, and if little Willy has a shovel, he is going to mix earth and sand.

2. If water is available, he is going to mix water with it.

3. If empty bottles are available he is going to fill them with earth, sand, and water, and the mixture is going to harden, and in time bottle and contents will have to be thrown away.

The final point in favor of the sandbox is that it is a great social asset; the neighborhood small fry gravitate toward it.

Once there, six out of seven children will be amiable and relentlessly industrious. For sociability it outdoes any bridge or tea table in the world. And I have an idea they don't talk about any one in the world.

Celestine Sibley

Miss Winn, What To Do?

When I get time to write anybody at all a letter I surely am going to write Marcia Winn, our expert on child affairs.

"Dear Marcia Winn," I'm going to say, "how do you make your half-grown children go to bed at night?"

The trouble is she'll probably tell me what I should have done when they were little. She'll probably look at the ages of my brood, which I will set down with some misgiving, and she will croon, "Too late! Too late!"

I know very well that as the twig is bent so the tree will grow. I don't need Marcia Winn to tell me that but, honestly, I get so tired of the night life at my house I'm thinking about chopping three young saplings down.

In the first place, they're never sleepy. They are everything else. Hungry. Thirsty. Lonesome. Talkative. Crazy about music, a book they started, a new box of paper dolls, painting their toenails . . . anything but sleeping.

They love it when we have company because then they can sit up and join in the conversation. But even if we don't have company we have conversation because they all sit on my bed and talk. After they have recounted the adventures of the day, which I am always glad to hear, they do not stop. They will reminisce about their youth or relate to me the plots of books or movies or television shows.

Yawning and closing your eyes accomplishes nothing.

"Mother," they chide me, "you aren't even listening! Now wake up and listen!"

So I prop my eyes open and moan piteously, "Tell me quick and then . . . please . . . please go to bed."

Eventually they wander off in their separate directions and I sink blissfully into that dark cavern of sleep.

The refrigerator door bangs. Downstairs I hear a radio or a record player start up. There's a whispered conversation in the hall and I realize they are calling up friends.

"Go to bed!" I screech, sitting up in bed. "All of you go to bed! It's late and I'm sleepy!"

"Yes'm," they say in martyred tones and for a while they are quiet.

But a beam of light falling across my pillow keeps pestering me. They have left all the lights on in the house. I get up to turn them off and limp back to bed, muttering to myself. With pillows pummeled into sleeping shape and the heating pad on against the unseasonable chill I doze off again.

Squeak!

It's a door opening. I flounce up in bed, my heart hammering in alarm. Then I hear her breathing by my book shelf.

"What on earth are you doing?" I bellow. "Can't you go to bed? Is it possible to get any rest at all in this house?"

"Yes, ma'am," she says meekly. "I was just looking for the Bible. I thought it might cheer me up a little to read a few verses."

What can you do? You can't beat a Bible reader.

No use trying to go to sleep anyhow. The middle child is standing in the doorway with a tray.

"I made some sardine sandwiches and a pot of cocoa," she says. "You want some?"

In a moment they are all back in bed having a midnight snack. Dear Marcia Winn, what would you do?

Man Who Fled U.S. Custody Gets Added 4-Year Sentence

One of two fugitives who escaped from Federal custody in Rome a week ago was sentenced Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Frank Hooper to four years in the penitentiary.

Franklin D. Robinson, 31, pleaded guilty to charges of post office burglary and escaping and was sentenced to four years on each count, the sentences to run concurrently.

Robinson, who had been awaiting trial on the burglary charge, escaped from a Federal detention cell in Rome last Tuesday. He was captured by FBI agents and Atlanta police Saturday in a house near the Chattahoochee River here.

George Krull, 30, who escaped with Robinson, was recaptured in Tennessee Monday. He had been awaiting trial on charges of kidnapping and rape on a government reservation and interstate transportation of a stolen automobile.

Meanwhile, Edward Howard Sutton was bound over to U.S. District Court under $1,000 bond on charges of harboring Robinson during his escape.

Robinson had been taken to Rome from the Rock Quarry State Prison for incorrigibles at Buford where he was serving a 10-year sentence for burglary.

Trial of 2 Phone Union Men Delayed

A second trial of two telephone union members charged with assault with intent to murder a non-striking union member March 29 was put off until possibly September in Fulton Superior Court Tuesday.

Resetting of the trial for A. A. Neely, 25, of 761 Evelyn Pl., NW, and J. T. Becker, 27, of 918 Hillburn Dr., SE, occurred after Judge E. E. Andrews disqualified himself to preside in the case.

The judge made the disqualification because his mother owns three shares of stock in American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

A previous trial of Neely and Becker on charges of wounding David Baily, 24, of Hapeville while he spliced a telephone cable ended in a mistrial.

Market Declines In Closing Hour

Rail Issues Back Down; Aircrafts Weather Slide

By RADER WINGET
NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—The stock market reversed itself today and declined under the weight of moderate selling in the final hour. The market had attained new record high marks in five of the previous six sessions.

It opened higher today and the upward trend continued until the last hour when profit-taking spread throughout the list with enough authority to turn the trend downward.

Losses never were great and amounted to 2 points at the outside in key areas. Plus signs, on the other hand, went to around 3 points. There was an almost even division between gains and losses.

FOLLOWS VOTE
Aircrafts were the main prop for prices. Strength in that division followed a vote by the Senate Appropriations Committee to boost Air Force funds to 700 million dollars.

Railroads, which were the mainstay of the market yesterday, backed down under profit-taking today.

The oils and some steels and radio-televisions were higher. Motors were slightly lower along with most airlines, chemicals and utilities. Other divisions were mixed, including the nonferrous metals and rubbers.

AP AVERAGE DOWN
The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 60 cents at $169.60. It was up $1 yesterday at a record high.

All three components of the average fell back today—industrials off 80 cents, rails off 70 cents and utilities off 20 cents.

Volume amounted to 2,860,000 shares as compared with 2,770,000 shares traded yesterday. Most of today's trading was done at higher prices, and it was noted that the pace of business tended to diminish as prices receded.

SCOTT PAPER UP
Scott Paper was up 2 1/2% and Great Northern Paper was up 3 1/2% after disclosing plans for Scott to buy large tracts of timber lands in Maine from Great Northern. Wrigley added 2 points on an extra dividend of 50 cents as against an extra of 25 cents a year ago.

Lockheed was up 1 1/2% and Bell added 1 1/2% as Wall Street began to mull over again the possibilities of merger.

Goodyear lost 2 1/2% after announcing plans to raise around $50 million dollars by selling common stock to present stockholders.

GOULD REVIEWS RADIO

'Monitor' May Furnish Networks Shot in Arm

By JACK GOULD

NEW YORK, June 14—Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver Jr., broadcasting's most unpredictable president, started something last weekend over his National Broadcasting Co.'s radio network. Just what it is, however, he may be the only man who knows for a while.

Weaver's radio project is titled Monitor, and in format it is a cousin of his successful television innovations. Today, Home, and Tonight. The show is something of an electronic grab-bag, designed to keep a listener guessing as to what's coming next.

Monitor got off to a bizarre start. Then Monitor seemed to hit its stride. But by 10 o'clock in the evening, the show had lost some of its steam and was only interesting, but not unusual listening.

When Monitor goes on a full schedule next weekend, it will have its work cut out for itself.

In beginning Monitor, Weaver announced it was the program's intent to throw away the radio clock and establish a new pattern—a continuous flow of items, their length determined by their worth.

The first "preview" hour covered such sundry matters as a pick-up of a Los Angeles swing band, a visit to San Quentin Prison, a visit with Al Kelly, the double-talk artist, a political commentary by Roscoe Drummond, a talk by Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, president of Harvard University, the noise made by an oyster, a visit to the Bucks County (Pa.) Summer Theatre, a scene from the new Jerry Lewis picture and a pick-up from a transatlantic plane leaving Idlewild Airport.

The second Monitor stretch, the first designed for radio alone, was a good deal more successful.

There was news, a live dance band, a book review, an evaluation of Nehru, a jazz unit, a pickup from Berlin, a pickup of a ceremony in Scotland, a return to San Quentin, a touch of Bob and Ray, some music from Nick's Tavern and an interview with Mary Martin and Helen Hayes, etc.

It was this stretch that had the most pace—a liveliness and an uncertainty that held the listener's attention.

Author Davy Disliked Reviewers

When Richard Aldrich penned his "Gertrude Lawrence as Mrs. A." New York and London friends of Gertrude Lawrence sneered at it, though it went on to head the American best-seller lists. Published this past month in England, Aldrich's book won this rave notice in the Times of London: "Books about theatrical people are, far too often, meretricious and shoddy. 'Gertrude Lawrence as Mrs. A.' provides a shining exception. The book would be fascinating if it were read as a novel by an unknown writer. As a punctilious study in biography, it is, in its own way, a notable feat."

Davy Crockett, who penned an autobiography in 1834, and whose name was attached posthumously to other writings, had a low estimate of book critics: "They are a sort of vermin that I shan't even as much as stop to brush off," he said, grimly. Crockett's gripe with men of letters is revealed in "Davy Crockett's Own Story," due this month from Citadel Press.

A new radio program featuring the weekly get-together of fan clubs of all recording stars will start Friday on WSB-Radio (NBC) at 11:15 p.m.

An Atlanta, Myenne Welker of 71 Sheppard Dr., NE, president of Atlanta's Eddie Fisher Fan Club, will be heard questioning her disk jockey favorite during the opening show.

The new 90-minute show is "designed to supply entertainment for young people of all ages," John Cleary, director of programs of the NBC radio network, has announced in New York.

Fan clubs all over the country will send in requests. The mostly heavily supported artists will be honored by having their records played on the Friday night "jamfest."

"NBC has already made contact with the presidents of more than 500 fan clubs," Cleary reported. "An audition session conducted last week with 250 youngsters in the audience turned out to be the liveliest session in the history of NBC's auditions."

Molotov on Calmer Sea, Hopes for Amity at Frisco

By BROOKS ATKINSON

ABOARD THE QUEEN ELIZABETH AT SEA, June 14—Since this ship called at Cherbourg last Saturday, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has been the passenger most consistently stared at in the first class accommodations.

He has been generally inaccessible but after lunch today Molotov accompanied by an interpreter met Charles Merz, editor of the New York Times, on the windy boat deck for an informal conversation. Molotov expressed the hope that the San Francisco meeting of the United Nations would be a successful one and that his decision to attend it would be well received in the United States. He thought that the signing of the Austrian treaty had set the stage for favorable developments.

With an eye to today's weather, which was clear after three days of fog and storm, he suggested that "we are fellow travelers on a calmer sea."

Everything about Molotov has been warily scrutinized by his fellow passengers since he turned up four days ago. His name does not appear in the passenger list. It can be reported that Molotov's deportment has been eminently correct and his personal manners mild.

Accompanied by 47 secretaries, assistants and security guards he embarked from the Cherbourg Harbor tender with the other passengers who had been delayed 12 hours by the unofficial seamen's strike at Southampton.
